Senator Predicts Second Front "Soon"

BRIDGES SEES EARLY ACTION AGAINST NAZIS

Member of Military Affairs Committee Believes Plan Is Now In Readiness.

SILENT ABOUT SOURCES

Expects Many Developments To Accompany Land Attack By U. S. on Germany.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Sen. H. Styles Bridges (R., N. H.), member of the senate military affairs committee, today declared that a second front will be opened up in Europe "in the not far distant future."

While the White House announced that President Roosevelt and Russian Foreign Minister Molotov reached a "general understanding" on the importance of a second front against Germany, military officials have withheld information as to the specific plans.

Bridges declined to reveal the basis for his prediction, but he frequently consults high military authorities in his capacity as a member of the military affairs committee.

"I expect to see a second front opened up in Europe sometime in the not far distant future," said Bridges.

"In the meantime, I expect to see great bombing raids upon Germany continued by the British. I also expect to see American bombers operating on a large scale over Germany. The tremendous damage done at Cologne and other cities shows the effectiveness of the bombing.

"Russia is making a gallant fight against the Nazi forces and a second front would be another blow to Hitler. We have greatly aided Russia by lend-lease materials. My information is that we have made a record in delivering arms to Russia."

After an investigation of America's military position, Bridges is convinced that many developments may be expected in the near future.

"I look for a gradual emerging of our forces into the picture in several more situations," he said. "There is no doubt but that our position in the Pacific has been improved by the hard blows struck at the Japanese naval forces."

Street-Flusher, 16 Years Old, Finally Gets Its Insurance

The resolution urging the purchase of insurance on a 16-year-old street flusher which city workers say is "scarcely ever used" popped up again at city council meeting last night and was passed by an 8 to 0 vote.

The same resolution was prepared for presentation at the June 2 meeting but disappeared when the meeting was called to order. All councilmen disclaimed authorship of the bill or removal of it from council's hopper.

The resolution came up again last night and council passed it after Mayor W. J. Locke said that the flusher "had always been insured but had been left out this last year by mistake." The mayor said the flusher was worth $200 and that the premium on it would not exceed $1.25

Investment Board Set Up for City

Council Finally Acts to Invest Idle Funds Into Securities.

More than 100 days after its original presentation, city council last night voted 8 to 0 for the creation of a municipal investment board to invest the city's idle funds in government securities.

The approval was given by the Republican-controlled council, however, only after a Republican councilman was given a place on the board.

The original plan for the board, as presented by Councilman Fred Miller, Democrat, on April 7, called for a board composed of the mayor, city solicitor, city auditor and city treasurer.

Under this set-up, the Democrats, which hold all of these offices except the mayor, would have had superior representation on the board

Council's finance committee with its two Republicans, Russell D. Porch and C. N. Schultz, and one Democrat, Michael Mihalick, withheld recommendation of the board until the legislation had been revised to include a member of city council

Councilman Shultz was elected to serve on the board at last night's meeting. Porch, chairman of the finance committee, said that the change in the plan was made to insure city council "control of the purse-strings."

The new investment board will examine all city funds and will decide which funds may be considered "idle monies." These may be invested in government securities instead of being deposited in a bank.

The ordinance requires that a schedule stating the requirements of the "idle monies" for the next six months be maintained at all times.

Serving on the board will be City Auditor Paul L. Kelley, City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner, City Treasurer Earle K. Troll, Councilman Shultz and the mayor.

HELD EXEMPT

Court Rules State Not Bound By Weekly Work Statute.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— The state supreme court today held in effect that the Ohio statute establishing an 8-hour day and a 48-hour week is not binding upon the state's 22 institutions and their hundreds of employes.

The high court overruled a motion by Royal E. Clements, an AFL agent representing a union of public employes, to review his case against State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood.

Clements accused Sherwood of violating the state law with respect to workers' hours, but the appellate court, in upholding the Franklin county common pleas court, declared that "the state is not bound by terms of a general statute unless it be so expressly enacted."

CITY TO BUY 3 NEW CRUISERS

Council Gives Authority To Replace Trio of Cars In Police Fleet.

Authority for the purchase of three new police cruisers for the Mansfield police department was given last night by city council in its second special meeting of the month.

The permission for the purchase of the cruisers was given by an 8 to 0 vote. Councilman Russell D. Porch, finance committee chairman, told fellow councilmen that although $4,300 had been appropriated for the purchase of four new cruisers this year that the city "would try to get along with only three new ones."

The cruisers would be used to replace three of the four cruisers purchased in April, 1941. The money which would have been used for the fourth cruiser was not returned to the general fund, however, but was transferred for the purchase of a new automobile for the service-safety director.

Wolff said that no plans had been made to sell or trade-in the old 1935 car now assigned to the director, but that it may be used in other departments.

Police Chief Thomas M. Bell said today that the four cruisers purchased last year have given an average of 37,000 miles of service in the 14 months they have been operating.

Scrap Rubber Piles Grow as Contributions Still Pour In

Mansfield's huge pile of scrap rubber was growing steadily today as men, women, and children continued to flock to gasoline filling stations to bring their contributions.

The old adage that "every little bit helps" was never better demonstrated than in the current rubber collection. A few minutes after a man brought in a half dozen old tires to the Canfield station at Sixth and Diamond a woman walked in with a little package.

In it she had a tiny sponge rubber bunny, a rubber ball, some old jar rings. The collection weighed only four pounds, in all. But it added to the heap.

One man drove in at the Shell Oil station at Wooster and Ashland roads and unloaded 459 pounds of tire reliners and boots, which he told H. R. Beal, the manager, had been lying around in the basement for several years.

Two customers swelled the large pile of scrap rubber at the Sohio station at Park avenue west and Benton. One woman brought in 17 old tires which she reported had been lying around on her farm for a long time, some of them for as much as 20 years. The tires weighed approximately 300 pounds.

A bit later, a Mansfield physician came in to the same station and brought a carton filled with 90 pounds of rubber gloves.

STAYS COOL

Temperatures to Continue In Low Bracket, Prediction.

The sun today was trying to chase away the gloomy weather that chilled Mansfielders yesterday and last night and shrouded the city in mist.

Moderately cool weather will continue this afternoon and tonight, however, the weatherman said. The sun came out intermittently this morning and the temperature moved up to 68 at noon to equal yesterday's high.

A light drizzle fell on the city most of yesterday and last night but it added up to only .16 of an inch of precipitation. Lowest reading this morning was 54.

Harmony Returns to Council, Votes Unanimously 21 Times

Apparently casting aside all dissension which has marked recent meetings, city council turned over a new leaf last night by breezing through 21 out of 23 pieces of legislation at its second special meeting of the month with unanimous votes.

Only two measures saw any opposition upon the part of any councilman. Councilman C. N. Shultz and Fred Miller voted against a bill to proceed with the resurfacing of Glessner avenue and Councilman Roy W. Vaughn opposed another bill calling for the appointment of a committee to study the effect of blackouts on industrial plant activity.

In sharp contrast with recent council sessions, everything went off smoothly. Councilman Vaughn said that he believed the caucus held Monday night had a good deal to do with the harmony displayed at the meeting.

Vaughn recently held a meeting with fellow-councilmen in an effort to persuade them to caucus before council meeting so that bills to be presented could be studied. Vaughn also asked council to outlaw any bills presented without 24-hour notice.

Council voted 8 to 0 for 21 out of the 23 pieces of legislation con-

NEW POLICY ON DRAFT AFFECTS COUNTY LITTLE

Plan For Married Deferments Hits Snag Here Because of Single Men Shortage.

WAIT CLARIFICATION

Boards Say Problem Puzzling One as U. S. Orders Heavier Service Calls.

The policy expressed in congress that selective service should not "break up the institution of the home" by drawing married men into service will have little effect in Richland county, it appeared today, for the reason that the county's three draft boards are running low on single manpower.

Officials in the three boards said they are hoping for clarification of the situation, which is made complicated for them by the fact that even while congressional leaders talk about deferment of registrants primarily because of their family status, the boards are receiving increased calls for men.

Although only a comparatively small group of men will leave from Richland county next Saturday to meet a light June quota, the boards have received unusually heavy calls for July. Heavy calls are expected in subsequent months.

The situation, insofar as the three local boards are concerned, is that the single men from the first two registrations — those from 21 to 35 years of age—are "pretty well used up," according to a board spokesman.

In addition, many men have been called to service who were married after Sept. 16, 1940, the day President Roosevelt issued his draft proclamation one month in advance of the first registration.

From the third registration—those in the 20-21 and 35-45 age groups, only about 10 per cent are single and likely to pass the physical examinations, the board spokesman said. This would provide only a little more than enough men to meet one month's quota.

The boards to date have adhered closely to a policy of not breaking up homes, even though the registrant's wife should be working or otherwise not in need of the registrant's financial assistance.

The expectation has been that married men—even though they were married long before Sept. 16, 1940, would be called to service if

SIGNS PAY BILL

Roosevelt Okays Wage Hike For Service Men.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A measure boosting the minimum base pay of the nation's fighting forces to $50 a month was signed into law today by President Roosevelt.

For most of the men, it means at least $20 more each month for necessities and entertainment on times-off, or to send back home to dependents. The bill carried a clause making the increase retroactive to June 1.

The measure covers ranks up to and including that of second lieutenant in the army and the comparable grade of ensign in the navy, whose pay would be increased from $1,500 to $1,800 a year.

The bill also will boost rental allowances for officers.

New Slander Suit Filed by School Head at Butler

Willard S. Weekley, superintendent of Butler schools, filed a third slander suit in Richland county common pleas court today, naming Ira George Butler furniture dealer, as the defendant. In this case, as in two filed Monday, he asks $10,000 damages.

In his action, the superintendent alleges that George accused him of having a venereal disease and added that "there are enough charges against Weekley to send him to the penitentiary."

The defamatory statements were made in George's store last Dec. 27 in the presence of Esta Gower,

Rout Squadron With 35 Hits On Two Battleships

American Airmen Score Victory Over Fascist Fleet Though British Admit 'Considerable Loss' to Tobruk-Bound Convoy.

BULLETIN

AN EAST COAST PORT—(UP)—Forty-one seamen died in the Caribbean sinking by Axis submarines of two American merchantmen flying Central American flags and seven others still are missing on a raft somewhere south of Cuba, survivors reported today.

(By Associated Press)

Big U. S. Army bombers were credited today with scoring 35 direct bomb hits on two Italian battleships in the great sea-air battle in the Mediterranean last week-end and a British source declared the American fliers had so battered the Fascist naval squadron that it never made contact with a British convoy it set out to intercept.

"It was like shooting fish in a barrel," said Maj. Alfred F. Kalberer, who led the Americans on their first battle flight against the Axis in the Mediterranean theater.

One Fascist battleship was hit 20 times, the other 15, Kalberer said. In addition, a cruiser was set afire and a destroyer damaged.

Simultaneously, the RAF announced that a second air attack Monday night had resulted in another hit on one of the two Italian battleships set afire by U. S. Army and RAF fliers Monday morning.

An RAF communique said the battleship was hit despite a heavy smoke screen laid down by four escorting destroyers, which were also attacked again.

The communique said 14 Axis planes were definitely shot down in the central Mediterranean fighting and many others were "so badly damaged that it is unlikely they returned to their bases."

The British themselves acknowledged sharp losses in sending much-needed supplies to Malta and the beleaguered North African fortress at Tobruk, but said the results would not be disclosed until the information would no longer be of value to the enemy.

On the North African land front, Lieut.-Gen. Neil Ritchie's troops, reinforced by the seaborne supplies delivered with the help of U. S. Army fliers, broke up Axis attacks on both flanks of Tobruk but it was apparent that the danger to the historic British stronghold on the shores of the Mediterranean was growing hourly.

With the Axis attacking on a half-moon front, British headquarters reported that imperial forces had driven off an Axis armored lunge at Sidi Rezegh and repulsed day-long thrusts at Acroma.

Sidi Rezegh, 50 miles west of the Egyptian-Libyan frontier, is 25 miles southeast of Tobruk. Acroma lies 20 miles southwest of Tobruk.

A third Axis force was massed at El Adem, 18 miles due south of Tobruk, but "failed to attack," the British said.

By contrast, Premier Mussolini's high command asserted that Axis forces had knifed into some British positions in the Acroma and El Adem sectors and captured more than 6,000 prisoners.

SMASH: Soviets Repulse Nazi Drive Toward Kharkov

(By International News Service)

MOSCOW—Marshal Semyon Timoshenko sent his armies into major counter-offensive thrusts on the Kharkov front today, hurling the Germans back from several important points and inflicting heavy losses, according to the Soviet army newspaper Red Star.

Furious German tank attacks launched in an effort to stem Timoshenko's drive "failed miserably," with the Nazis suffering tremendous losses, Soviet reports said.

On several sectors of the Kharkov front the Red army made smashing thrusts against the German positions.

A large number of tanks were said by the Moscow radio to have been blown up and put out of action.

Fierce fighting continued to rage before the besieged Russian naval base of Sevastopol in the Crimea but Soviet forces clung firmly to their positions and were said to have repulsed the Nazis in several sectors.

On one sector, the Moscow radio said, Russian artillery destroyed 31 German tanks and put 40 more out of action on another sector.

Four Nazi infantry battalions were reported wiped out in one area.

(Advices received in Stockholm reported that German forces at Sevastopol under leadership of Col. Gen. Fritz von Mannstein had brought up "Big Bertha" cannon to blast the dugout fortifications at point blank range.)

The Soviet news agency, Tass, discrediting Nazi assertions that the second battle of Kharkov had ended, said that stubborn battles

WARNING: Curtin Declares Nation Can Be Lost to Japs

(By Associated Press)

Australia's Prime Minister John Curtin, gravely warning that "Australia can be lost," declared today that the war news was not good and that the fall of the down-under continent would lay Hawaii and the whole North American coast open to Japanese attack.

Curtin, who recently challenged Japan to attempt an invasion of Australia, said the Axis was engaged in three major thrusts against the United Nations and that each was of vital importance to Australia.

1. NORTH AFRICA—"The news from Libya is not good. Rommel has made gains at great cost, but nevertheless gains which are clearly reverses for our forces.

"It is clear that the struggle in this theater has reached the critical stage."

2. RUSSIA—"Australia is irrevocable linked" with Russia's defense against the current German onslaught.

3. BLOCKADE — "Submarine warfare against the Allies has reached a high intensity, and shipping losses, I tell you bluntly, are beyond our present annual replacement capacity."

A complete setback for the Allies in the Middle East would gravely affect Australia, he said, because it would give the Axis command of the Suez and the gateway to India, leaving the Indian ocean open for enemy approach to Australia.

While Curtin drew this somber picture, Gen. Douglas MacAr-

U. S. FLIERS HIT 2 BATTLESHIPS WITH 35 BOMBS

Drive Italian Squadron Off as It Attempts to Break Up Convoy For Tobruk.

In aerial warfare, the British said RAF night raiders resumed the offensive against Germany's war foundries after a week-old lull enforced by bad weather.

Eight RAF bombers failed to return, indicating that it was a sizable foray although below the scope of the 1,000-plane attacks on Cologne and Essen May 30 and June 1.

Authoritative London quarters acknowledged that British convoys which fought their way through to Malta and Tobruk under Axis naval and aerial attack delivered vital supplies "at considerable cost."

These quarters declared, however, that "like the Japanese fleet in the Pacific," the Italian fleet which sought to break up the convoy bound for Tobruk "found it was no match for shore-based aircraft, including the Liberator (Consolidated) bombers of the U. S. Air Force."

"There was no ship-to-ship contact between the enemy fleet and escort vessels of our convoy," the British said. "The Italian admiral was driven off his objective by air attacks."

While the British admitted officially that the convoy operations were only "a limited success," they scoffed at German and Italian high command assertions that the Axis had sunk or damaged 58 or more warships and merchantmen in the Mediterranean air-sea battle Sunday and Monday.

Today the Italian high command declared Axis naval and air forces had turned back the British convoy en route from Alexandria, Egypt, to Malta, and asserted that several hundred British survivors of a battle in the Sicilian channel had been rescued by Italian ships.

The spectacular dash to reinforce Tobruk came as British military quarters conceded that Marshal Erwin Rommel's African corps had gained numerical superiority in tanks and anti-tank guns.

The British said three weeks of fierce battling across the broiling desert sands had depleted the strength of United States-built "General Grant" tanks, forcing the British to fall back on older-type reserve tanks.

With the whole critical struggle hinging on armored superiority, the British case appeared gloomy indeed unless the reinforcements included big new tanks to cope with Marshal Rommel's powerful "Mark Fours."

Behind the battle lines, France's 86-year-old chief of state, Philippe Petain, admitted in a broadcast to the French people that "discontent is growing" under the heel of the Nazi conquerors.

Speaking on the second anniversary of his appeal to Germany for an armistice, Petain recalled that in that "tragic hour, I summoned you to silence your anguish." And now, he said, "I do not at all hide from myself the feebleness of the echoes my appeals have met with. . . . The workman suffers, and his enforced passivity cannot be taken for resignation; the peasant grows impatient."

RAF Renews Bombing Attacks On Ruhr

LONDON — (INS) — Royal Air Force squadrons during the night carried out heavy raids against industrial targets in the Ruhr Valley and Rhineland areas of Germany.

It was the first large-scale bombardment of Nazi war industry plants in two weeks

Unfavorable weather has prevented assaults on Germany proper for ten days. After industrial areas of Essen in the Ruhr were attacked June 3 and a bombing carried out against the Port of Emden June 7 RAF activity had been confined to raids on the channel coast areas.

The German radio reported attacks had been made on western and southwestern Germany prior to the official British announcement.

The Nazis claimed that seven RAF planes were shot down when they raided a number of points in the reich.

The air ministry announced that eight of its bombers were missing

Develop Program To Restore World Trade

WASHINGTON — (INS) — A four-point program for restoring world trade after the war is over has been drafted by the state department, it was learned today.

Dr. Herbert Feis, state department adviser on international economic affairs, has been sent to London on a special mission in connection with some of the problems involved in the proposed program.

Intended to serve as the basis for establishment of a post-war international economic system, the program embodies Secretary of State Hull's liberal trade principles, including non-discriminatory treatment in commercial relations, lower tariff barriers and the financing, mostly with American capital, of economic recovery programs in the various nations of the world.

sidered. Councilman Paul W. Bush, Sixth ward, was not present at the meeting.

The regular June meeting June 2 saw Councilman Shultz and George C. Kyle opposed on several issues. Last Friday, council action came to almost a standstill when Shultz, Vaughn and other Republican members refused to have "legislation jammed down their throats," as they called it.

Vaughn and Shultz told Kyle, also a Republican, that they would not vote on several matters Kyle wanted to present, until they had been given sufficient time to study them. Council finally decided to consider only two pieces of emergency legislation at the Friday meeting.

Kyle managed to get together with Vaughn, Shultz and other members over the week-end and explained the proposed legislation at a Monday night caucus. Last night showed the fruits of the caucus meeting.

Even the two bills which faced opposition denoted no break in council's newly-found harmony. Vaughn explained after the meeting that he had voted against the bill to set up a committee to study the blackout problem because he felt it was government-controlled and "should be passed without any strings."

"The mayor has no power to set up rules which the government does not wish," said Vaughn. "Other cities have passed this legislation and industries have complied with it. I just didn't believe we should change our original purpose."

Councilman Shultz said that he voted against the resurfacing of Glessner avenue because the $6,600 which would be needed from the general fund was needed for other street purposes, including the resurfacing of U. S. Routes 42 and 42-A within the city.

The votes of Shultz and Miller prevented Kyle from getting emergency passage of the bill to have Glessner avenue resurfaced with asphalt. The bill was given only its first reading, the motion for emergency suspension of the rules failing.

The resolution was sponsored by Councilman George C. Kyle, who stated on June 2 that he didn't "understand why the city should begin insuring a 16-year-old flusher it never bothered about at all."

Kyle would make no statement, concerning his changed attitude.

Charles H. Hebel, city streets superintendent, said the flusher was scarcely ever used by the city and then only on a few downtown streets.

Commenting on the flusher when the insurance was first proposed, Hebel said "the flusher is obsolete just like the fire-fighting equipment of the city. We use it occasionally but not very often."

Hebel also said that the flusher had an original pressure of about 72 pounds but that street employes were lucky to get 30 pounds pressure at present.

SELTZER PARK BILLS APPROVED

SHELBY—Routine bills totaling $328.03 were approved by the Seltzer park board Tuesday night at a meeting at the city hall.

A report made by Clerk Chester P. Monn showed that the receipts at the pool for this year so far were larger than those for the same period last year. A total of $1,300 has been taken in at the pool so far this year.

The attendance at the pool dropped this week because of the cold weather, Monn told the board thur's airmen continued the business of beating off Japanese aerial attacks.

Gen. MacArthur said Japanese bombers tried for the fourth successive day yesterday to soften the defenses of the far north Australian port of Darwin, but failed to inflict major damage as Allied fliers drove them off.

Altogether, Gen. MacArthur said, the Japanese have lost 13 bombers and fighters in the forays, against a loss of six Allied fighter planes.

On the China war front, Chinese dispatches said Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's armies had recaptured the Yangtze river port of Hosueh, Hopeh province shipping center, and had driven the Japanese invaders into full retreat.

Chinese Admit Loss of Shangjao

CHUNGKING — (AP) — Shangjao, important station on the Chekiang-Kiangsi railway, has been abandoned to the Japanese but only after an all day battle in which 8,000 casualties were inflicted on the invaders, the Chinese high command announced tonight.

Shangjao, 50 miles within Kiangsi province, fell Monday to the Japanese column which has driven westward along the railway from Chekiang province seeking a junction with a second force driving eastward from Nanchang, western terminus of the line.

With the fall of Shangjao, the Chinese admitted that the gap between the two Japanese columns has been cut to 50 miles.

Sanguinary fighting in the streets preceded the abandonment of the city, the communique asserted.

Dutch Commander Captured In Java

MELBOURNE — (INS) — Maj. Gen. A. Pesman, commander of Dutch guerrilla forces in western Java, has been captured by the Japanese, the Nipponese-controlled Batavia radio reported today in a broadcast heard by the Netherlands East Indies information service.

Maj. Gen. Pesman was taken prisoner after more than three months of resistance, according to the report. He commanded the plateau around Bandung, headquarters of the N. E. I. army, before fall of the city.

Nehru Warns Against Jap Promises

NEW DELHI, India —(AP)— Jawaharlal Nehru, influential leader of the all-India congress party, said today that "the situation in India is becoming intolerable" but warned that, despite Tokyo's promises, the Japanese, if victorious, would only continue "India's subjugation."

"We cannot carry on as impassive spectators," he declared. "Other deeds are necessary."

Nehru, the still powerful Mohandas K. Gandhi and other influential men in the congress party have been conferring in Wardha on whether they can further their goal of Indian independence by helping or hindering Britain's war effort.

LONDON — (U.P.) — Gen. Draja Mihailovitch's Jugoslav guerrillas have captured 1,500 Axis troops, including one complete enemy battery, in new fighting in Bosnia, Hercegovina and Montenegro, reports reaching the Jugoslav refugee government here said today.

The reports said, however, that Axis forces had launched an offensive in those regions and that casualties were heavy on both sides. During the mountain fighting, the Italians admitted 75 killed and 783 wounded among their troops, these reports said.

Jugoslav spokesmen said 17 Italian divisions, in addition to a large number of Bulgarian and Hungarian troops had been engaged by the guerrilla units led by Mihailovitch. The focal point of Serb resistance has shifted from western Serbia to Bosnia, the reports said.

PICKET BOATS GUARD OHIO'S LAKEFRONT AREA

Coast Guard Checks Craft of All Kinds For Hint of Sabotage.

By JACK H. BIRNBAUM
(INS Staff Correspondent)

CLEVELAND — The task of guarding northeastern Ohio's multi-million dollar waterfront with its vital Cleveland ore docks, boats and bridges rests today with the clear-eyed young men in the river and harbor patrol of the United States coast guard.

An International News Service reporter was the first newsman to witness the daily port inspection under war-time conditions, cruising almost four hours in a slim, battleship-gray cutter, watching its crew make careful checks of incoming ore and coal-laden boats and small fishing craft.

Before Pearl Harbor, the coast guard maintained the river and harbor patrol in former pleasure craft turned over to the government for the duration. The boats then bore shiny brightwork and gleaming white paint, and their crews were unarmed.

Today, plying from the coast guard station, is a fleet of swift, gray cutters, called "picket" boats, which are capable of out-running anything on the lakes. And the crews are armed.

The sun made shimmering sequins of Lake Erie's rolling swells when the cutter nosed out from her slip at the station and headed up the Cuyahoga river to check unloading freighters.

Manning the vessel was a crew of three. The "skipper" was a 29-year-old Geneva resident who acted as if he were born on a boat. The other two were a 22-year-old Ashtabula lad who did most of the pilot work, and an 18-year-old Cincinnatian.

First stop on the muddy, kinky Cuyahoga whose placid waters have never seen such a turmoil of activity, was a black-hulled sand carrier. An ensign and the "skipper" boarded the ship to check identification cards of the seamen and to "take a look around."

Then the pilot of the cutter eased the patrol boat further up the river while the crew scrutinized an out-bound oil tanker, and a rock carrier. That done, the patrol boat headed back to where a red-bottomed lake carrier was disgorging her thousands of tons of rich iron ore.

Then the ensign and a crew member clambered aboard the ore carrier and greeted a tanned, blonde, armed guard, smudged with the soot of the river and sweating from the heat of the mid-day sun. But grim-looking with his ready arms.

The guard was one of several stationed on the vessel by the coast guard in an effort to nip sabotage to ships, docks or channel docks. After an exchange of pleasantries and orders, the ensign chided the guard for not demanding to see the INS reporter's identification card.

The youth crimsoned as he asked for it, and it's a sure thing he will inspect the identification cards of everyone—even those persons accompanied by officials.

'I'm Not Here' Declares Senator To Newspaper Man

NEW ORLEANS —(INS)— U. S. Senator Tom Connally of Texas strode rapidly through a New Orleans hotel. A reporter accosted him. "How about an interview, senator?" asked the newspaperman.

"I'm not here," replied Connally.

"How long won't you be here, senator?" asked the reporter.

"I won't be here for two days yet. Come around Saturday and see me," answered Connally, as he dashed on after explaining he was in New Orleans for a rest—and that meant no interviews.

TURN IN ALL YOUR SCRAP RUBBER AT ANY GAS STATION—TODAY

MORE FACTS ON SCRAP RUBBER DRIVE

EVEN IF YOU CAN FIND NOTHING but an old pair of rubber heels—turn them in! They'll be put to good use. In his radio speech, President Roosevelt said, "We want every bit of rubber you can possibly spare—and in any quantity—less than a pound—many pounds. We want it in every form."

WHERE TO TAKE IT. Bring all your scrap rubber to any gas station. In his national appeal, the President requested Ohio's oil industry and the 17,000 convenient gas stations and hundreds of rural tank trucks to receive the rubber and pay you 1c per pound. Or, you may donate your scrap rubber. The oil industry is gladly cooperating with the President and the hundreds of Ohio Salvage Committees.

WHEN. Right away—today, if possible. Time is short. The drive ends June 30 and the more scrap rubber you turn in, the faster it will be put to work to smash the Axis! So start looking right now. Comb the attic, the cellar, the storage closets, the garage, the barn, the vacant lot next door—every place for every bit of rubber.

BOYS, GIRLS, WOMEN, CHURCHES, SCOUTS, CLUBS! You can serve your country, your fellow citizens, your own organization. Search for rubber and turn it in for a cent a pound. Add money to your organization's treasury.

WHAT HAPPENS TO THE RUBBER. All scrap rubber collected will be immediately added to our country's vital supply. Gasoline dealers will immediately be reimbursed by the oil companies supplying them, and the rubber will be bought by the Rubber Recovery Corp., a new government unit. Any margin over the penny a pound will go to Army and Navy Relief, the U.S.O. and the Red Cross. Oil companies, with others, will contribute transportation and all costs of picking up and handling, as well as the time of thousands of employees.

Let's go, Ohio . . . get the rubber in!

TO ALL SOHIO DEALERS:

Because of our country's serious rubber situation, President Roosevelt launched the Scrap Rubber Drive with all possible speed. There was no time for detailed planning—the important thing is to get the rubber in.

But, as always, you responded magnificently. You've done a great job and we know that you will continue to do all in your power to make this drive a smashing success. Many of you aren't equipped with scales for weighing the rubber, and will have to guess at it. But we are sure that the people of Ohio will patriotically bear with you and other dealers working under this handicap.

Your company assures you full cooperation by immediately refunding you the cent-a-pound you pay for scrap rubber turned in at your station, in collecting the rubber and in rendering any help you may need.

W. T. HOLLIDAY, President

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 17, 1942.

Road maps are still interesting—they give you an idea of where you might have gone.

Back from a Washington job, from which she resigned to avoid a nervous breakdown, one young woman explains: "It was just like going to a New Year party every night."

Help Enlarge Scrap Rubber Heap

A SURPRISING revelation, in connection with the drive to round up scrap rubber, is the number of things around homes, places of business and factories that are made of rubber and are suitable for the reclaiming process by which the nation's rubber supply will be substantially increased.

This effort is being hailed as the most practical approach thus far made by the war administration to relieve the acute rubber shortage and bridge over the period preceding quantity production of synthetic rubber and possible increase in supply of natural rubber.

It may not be understood by everyone that a small percentage of pure crude rubber, mixed with reclaimed rubber, can be used to make tires and other needed articles, and if this rubber-collecting campaign can be carried to a quick and successful conclusion the outlook for tires, retreads and other rubber products, in excess of military requirements, will be much improved.

It will be a material help in this effort if everybody will gather up all discarded rubber, whether in large or small quantity, and take it to the nearest gasoline filling station. There need be no hesitancy in taking the one cent a pound that is offered as this amount will be repaid to filling station operators. Rubber thus accumulated will be quickly forwarded to central collection points and will shortly be available for reprocessing.

If it's made of rubber and you have no further use for it make it a part of the national scrap rubber pile tomorrow.

That Sugar Rationing Fiasco

THE SUGAR situation has become so badly muddled by incompetent and inept handling by government agencies that nothing short of a complete backdown, and acknowledgement of mistake would quickly bring order out of present chaos.

Best available information is to the effect that current supplies of sugar in the United States are more than sufficient to meet all needs for this year and that the 1942 production will be of such volume as to again fill the storage space of refineries and wholesale warehouses.

Reports from dealers are to the effect that MORE sugar is now being retailed, under the rationing system, than would ordinarily be sold if customers were left free to buy in accordance with their needs.

And, despite much publicized shortage of transportation facilities SUGAR IS BEING SHIPPED INTO MANSFIELD BY FREIGHT FROM WESTERN STATES WHILE NEARBY OHIO REFINERIES OF BEET SUGAR ARE BULGING WITH SURPLUS STOCK!

Millions of dollars badly needed for military purposes have been spent by the government in putting the sugar rationing program into effect all over the country, in addition to which rationing boards and hundreds of thousands of school teachers have given patriotically of their time in carrying through the vast registration plan, which is now being duplicated in the "sugar for canning" farcical procedure—to be repeated with the advent of the later canning season.

If, as has been suggested, the sugar rationing program was perpetrated by one of Washington's bureaucratic agencies for no other purpose than to make the people of this country more "war conscious" it is high time for President Roosevelt, or some other sound-thinking man to whom he delegates authority, to take the matter in hand, admit that a mistake was made, and restore the sale of sugar for domestic uses to a sensible basis.

Gambling Rackets Reaping Harvest

MOVEMENT by the United States government against what is termed "the biggest lottery operation in the country" comes at a time when more thought is being given to the billions of dollars diverted from the national war effort into gambling rackets of many kinds.

The lottery referred to in federal grand jury indictments returned in Detroit seems to have operated on a sufficiently big scale to attract government notice, but the smaller gambling rackets are equally effective in draining their communities of money which might otherwise be used for purchase of war savings bonds and stamps, for contributions to support war activities, payment of income taxes and improving home conditions.

It is quite generally assumed, when gambling operations are given free rein in a city, that officials responsible for this laxity of law enforcement are recipients of graft from privileged operators and while this may not always be true it is a quite safe conclusion as it is known that such officials COULD collect tribute from wealth-producing gambling enterprises, and their inaction is otherwise difficult to understand.

Present conditions, with free flow of money and restricted output of many commodities, is providing a flush period for gambling rackets of all sorts, with almost unlimited opportunities for quick profits for promoters—and nothing much is being done about it, in spite of the desperate need for more money to carry on the war.

Palatable Meat for Soldiers

MOTHERS and fathers needn't worry much about the diet of their soldier and sailor sons. Present facilities provide better and fresher food for the army and navy than ever before, and new methods will make still more improvement.

A recent announcement from Chicago tells of packing and shipping methods that are revolutionary. Meat is handled by a new process that requires only about one-tenth of the space taken by fresh meat, and without losing its freshness. This will save a vast amount of shipping space and make it easier for troops to carry plenty of palatable food for emergencies. Pre-cooked and dried by the new process, the pellets need only a little water to turn them back into fresh ground meat, meat loaf, hamburger, hash and vegetable combinations.

That may not make a soldier boy's mouth water right now, but he'll probably appreciate it sooner or later.

What of Japs After Nazis Lose?

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

PREDICTING what'll happen in Germany if and when Japan and Italy flatten out isn't so difficult. The Nazis will fold up pretty speedily. It was demonstrated, back in '18, that the country's one that knows, for quite awhile, anyway, when it's licked. Herr Hitler will be bumped off, maybe by the democratic allies, maybe by his own crowd, which can't but be completely dissatisfied with him, possibly by his own volitio, in typical Teutonic fashion.

The Germans, however, will continue to be recognized as a people. No doubt they'll be considerably policed and restricted for a long time to come. They'll be disliked, for having acquiesced in Adolf, but, after all, they still will be recognized as human beings.

They'll be blamed, not so much for themselves alone, as for having fallen, first for the kaiser and then for the fuehrer. It'll be suspected that it's a tendency which seems habitual with 'em. There's a lot of talk to the effect that this has got to be a "happier post-war world," and Germany will be accorded a niche in it.

And when Germany and Japan flatten out? What'll happen to Italy?

Mussolini An Easy Mark.

Nothing serious. Some think the same thing or things will occur to Signor Mussolini that will occur to Adolf Hitler, but his fate will be strictly personal. Benito himself is regarded more of a stooge than a miscreant. Even if he could be caught, I doubt that anything worse would be done to him than to shut him up in a nut college. There's precious little feeling against the Italians generally. The most they'll lose will be a bit of outlying territorial possessions.

But what about Japan? When Germany and Italy go flooey? Especially Germany; Italy's immaterial.

Italy is a European and slightly Mediterranean and North African problem. Germany's essentially European. Both issues more or less sidewipe us, here in the United States, but they aren't so vital to us the Asiatic one.

True, western hemispherically, we've got two fronts.

It's the Atlantic one, though, that we've got allies on.

It's clear, though, that the Pacific side's the one we've got to scrabble on—Pearl Harbor, Alaska, the Aleutians, still farther south on the mainland, and Midway.

That area's our funeral.

But, essentially—

We help the Allies in and somewhat beyond the eastern Atlantic coast and down in the Australasian seas, it's up to us to help 'em, the northern Pacific ocean and mainland, on both sides, are ours to look after. And, besides ours, they're ours that are being attacked.

In a sense we're being more nearly attacked by the Japs.

And Then Japan.

So, when the Germans and the relatively unimportant Italians are disposed of, what about those infornal Japanese?—who may flatten out also, or who may remain cuckoo, as they have a habit of doing.

We may have a Jap war to fight indefinitely.

We'll have helped the United Nations, but will they stay put, for a Jap-American one?

Or will it degenerate into a Jap-American war exclusively?

Those Japs may not quit, just because Europe does.

Of course we'll still have China.

I'm not pooh-poohing China.

Yet it does mean that a considerable amount of readjustment is going to be required, plus Europe, before Uncle Sam's future is guaranteed satisfactorily on into eternity.

John Wesley, founder of Methodism, was born at Epworth Rectory on June 17, 1703. Wesley's supreme gift was his genius for organization and his special talent of availing himself of circumstances and the suggestions of those about him. A courteous controversialist, he was beloved by all the preachers. Welcomed everywhere during the last three years of his life, his visits constituted public holidays. Wesley died in 1791.

San Francisco Waits

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

HERE'S something, I think, the rest of the country should know. It's something that all frightened Americans should know—and who of us isn't? It's about a city that sits and smiles.

I'm meaning my own city, San Francisco. Have you ever seen her? She's more than a city. She's romance and beauty and allure . . . she's a gypsy and a witch and a proud senorita in the trailing lace of her fogs . . . in the spreading glory of her hills.

There on the hills she is waiting today with a smile on her lips but a dreadful wisdom in her eyes. For she knows full well that above all other cities she means America to the little yellow men.

Hill after hill—crowned with stars, circled by the singing tide, the very air perfumed with loveliness—roses and acacia, violets and magnolias spilling their fragrance to meet the salt savor of the sea. And up and down her alleys and glittering highways a happy people went.

Now they still go—as proud in their bearing, as firm in their tread, as ever before. But where once they faced life and drank it deep to its purple dregs they now face the menace that is arising over the loom o' the lights. Each wave brings it nearer, each night draws it closer. When and if it will come no one can know, but this all America should know.

SAN FRANCISCO, WAITING, LAUGHS.

Still she sits on her lovely hills, fragrant and jeweled, beautiful above all cities. But now her bay bristles with guns. Along her far-flung beaches more guns are camouflaged. Still she is the great senorita, but there is a knife in her garter and when the time comes she will know how to use it.

This is San Francisco. This is America. No other nation, not even Britain, can understand this strange thing—that a people may wait and laugh. A free people. A people who might escape to the mountains and the hidden valleys, yet view such escape with contempt.

A city under the shadow. Yet women plant their victory gardens beneath that shadow. And boys and girls dance and fall in love and marry. And beneath my window, which I must tape today, a humming bird has its nest.

This is San Francisco. This is America. This is how free people face the threat of death. Long ago Someone who had also faced death summed it all up in these words with the same smile—"O death, where is thy sting; O grave, where is thy victory!"

Death can never conquer a nation that waits and smiles, and fringes its smile with guns.

Timely Editorial

Cutting Out the Cutaways.

One of the minor war time restrictions on men's clothing, little remarked in the rush of more important things, is the order against tailoring any more cutaway coats for the duration. This is a break for males in general and for bridegrooms in particular.

As a matter of fact the cutaway, or morning coat, is a handover from an era of greater ornateness in male attire that has little claim to a place in today's world of comfortable and sightly fashions. It is a sort of vestigial remnant, like the vermiform appendix, from a period when men wore socks, flowered waistcoats, and brass buttons, when a man couldn't hold up his head unless he wore a frock coat—that other atrocity sometimes called the Prince Albert—and a high silk hat downtown to business.

If the war has done nothing else beneficial it has started the cutaway on the road to oblivion. Let's hope it never finds its way back.—Columbus Dispatch.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Ambition of Quezon Is to Raise 'Old Glory' In Philippines Again

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—A few years after Admiral Dewey captured the Spanish fleet in Manila bay, a young Filipino patriot came to live in Washington. He was a very unobtrusive figure, sleeping in Rock Creek park when the summer nights were hot and attracting no more attention than the average Filipino citizen.

Few who knew him then, ever dreamed that some day he would become the first president of the Philippine Commonwealth. Even fewer dreamed that some day he would be forced to lead a pilgrimage out of the Philippines at the point of Japanese bayonets.

But the other day President Manuel Quezon—in exile—stood on the rostrum of the United States senate and delivered a speech which probably touched more hearts than Churchill, Clemenceau and other famous senate visitors. Quezon said:

"I saw the Stars and Stripes pulled down."

It was the first time the Stars and Stripes ever has been pulled down by force of arms in the entire history of the United States. And President Quezon has now come back to Washington, back to the scene of his youth, determined to pull the flag up again.

* * *

Irked at U. S. Failure.

WHEN you meet this nervous, restless dynamo of energy, you can understand why he was elected first president of the Philippines and why 16 million now look confidently to his government-in-exile to lead them back to freedom.

"The vice-president will be shocked at me," says Quezon with a twinkle in his eye as he sits down to lunch, "but I am going to be informal. The vice-president thinks I should be more formal. And when he becomes president—which he will be in one year—he can have lots of formality. But for the time being let's take off our coats."

Vice-President Osmena, seated across the table, grins good-naturedly, also takes off his coat.

"When I was in the Philippines and our people were appealing daily for help against the onrushing enemy, I confess I was bitter against the United States," President Quezon says quite frankly. "And when we heard that more troops had been sent to Iceland at a time when just a few planes might have turned the tide of victory for us, then a lot of us were bitter.

"But now that I have been in Australia and the United States and see the entire war picture, I understand and approve. I realize that you have to make some retreats in order to achieve victory. But meanwhile our Filipino people are itching for the day when we can raise the flag again in Manila."

* * *

Government In Exile.

PRESIDENT QUEZON, who has known most members of the U. S. senate intimately for many years, already has rallied his government, holds cabinet meetings in Washington and is laying plans for the return to Manila.

One thing that irks him is the dictum put forward by High Commissioner Francis Sayre that all letters from Quezon to the U. S. government must clear through Sayre. It so happens that Quezon knows many U. S. officials better than Sayre, can call a score of senators by their first names, is on intimate poker-playing acquaintance with others. So the idea of using the stiff, protocolic channel of the high commissioner annoys him to the core.

As a matter of fact, many U. S. officials believe that earlier relations with the Philippine president, especially at Corregidor, were not handled too diplomatically. Friends of Quezon say that during the war-weary weeks that he was cooped up on Corregidor, High Commissioner Sayre came to him and inquired regarding his plans for leaving. Quezon said he planned to go to the southern islands, unoccupied by the Japs, and rest. "The Filipinos would never surrender me up," he explained, "and I could stay there indefinitely.

But Commissioner Sayre argued that they should both remain in Corregidor to the very end.

"We should die if necessary," said Sayre, proposing that they set an example of courage and resistance to the Filipino people.

The next day General MacArthur came to see President Quezon, as he did every day, and Quezon told him of his conversation with Commissioner Sayre.

"That's funny," remarked MacArthur, "Sayre was in to see me just two or three days ago wanting me to cable Washington for a submarine to take him home. I refused, but told him that if he wanted to draft the cable himself I would send it under his name."

Shortly thereafter Admiral Rockwell sent a submarine from nearby waters. By this time relations between Quezon and Sayre had become so strained that Quezon and Vice President Osmena refused to leave on the same submarine with Sayre. And since President Roosevelt some time before had invited Quezon to come to the United States, Gen. MacArthur intervened and sent the Philippine president and vice president out of Corregidor first, taking them to the southern islands. Later the sub came back for Sayre.

* * *

Daring Submarine.

QUEZON pays great tribute to Commander Chester C. Smith of Boise, Idaho, of the submarine who piloted his trip south.

"He looked so young and innocent," says Quezon. "Yet when he saw a Jap transport near Manila while he was on his way to pick me up, he launched a torpedo and sank it. Later I said to him: 'Commander, don't get too many temptations about sinking Jap ships from now on'."

Quezon also pays tribute to Secretary of War Stimson, who was governor general of the Philippines under Coolidge, later secretary of state under Hoover.

"Secretary Stimson was a good governor of the Philippines because he trusted us. And as soon as we realized that, we trusted him. If the British had trusted him the same way in 1931 when the Japanese invaded Manchuria, there never would have been a war in Europe nor would the Japs have hauled down the Stars and Stripes in the Philippines."

Today President Quezon, who really appreciates liberty and democracy because he has fought for them, is dedicating his life to hauling the Stars and Stripes up again.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—It's like this. . . . A woman who will never see 60 again is having dinner with her husband and with some guests in Jack Dempsey's restaurant on Broadway. . . . After awhile the Mauler comes in, and the woman leaves her table and goes up to him. . . . "Mr. Dempsey," she says, "will you shake hands with me? I once saw you fight, when I was a little kid." Dempsey takes her hand and gallantly says, "Why, Madam, you're still a kid."

THREE sailors pause in front of a studio in 6th avenue, and gaze at the photographs that crowd the windows. . . . They are joined after awhile by a couple of soldiers, and presently, they represent the snake's head of a long line of gobs and soldiers, waiting to have their pictures taken, at 10 cents a throw. . . . These pictures are for their girls back home, and for their families. . . . The windows in front of the studios are all crowded now, with photographs of guys in uniform. . . . You see wide, honest wheatfield grins. . . . You see guys with high, thin eastern noses. . . . You see curly hair, and Irish eyes, and frank, open countenances with Texas bluebonnets in their eyes. . . . They must have reasoned, when they had those 2½x2½ prints taken, "Well, I better do it now. . . . I'll have it taken now, and send it to Mom. . . . I mightn't have another chance, not for awhile, anyway."

IN Toots Shore's 51st street restaurant, a familiar figure shows up. His name is George Raft. . . . A shade taller, perhaps, than you expected. . . . Eyes that can drill right through you, hard eyes, in a way, but interested. . . . He's in town only for a week. . . . There's a luncheon for him, and among those on hand are Bill Stern, the sports announcer, and Jimmy Walker, the ex-mayor of NY, and Jimmy Johnston, boxing manager. But Raft is an actor, and these are all sports figures. . . . What has George Raft to do with sports? . . . "You may not know it," Bill Stern reminds, "but Georgie is a graduate of the big leagues. It's a fact. . . . He used to be bat boy for the NY Yankees." . . . No, I didn't know that. . . . But he was And it's true. . . .

When I come upon Bill Stern, I'm always a little startled to remember that Bill has only one leg. . . . The other was lost in a motor accident. . . . You don't think of those things when you hear him on the air, when he is broadcasting a football game. . . .

ALL the old Army & Navy stores have come into their own, now that there's a war. . . . They're an education in themselves, in a way. . . . If you stand there a few minutes, you can memorize all the insignia, and how much they cost, and what they mean. . . . Their windows are filled with them. . . . A Farmer's Diary

Modern Junk Yard

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IT WAS early afternoon and the sun was hot when we passed near a junkyard in a village east of the city. I thought it might be an opportune time to replace the worn out horn on my '34 model Plymouth—and the junk yard seemed the likeliest place to go. So I parked in front and left my wife in the car while I went to look around.

A big new building was going up over the foundation of the old one. Workmen were laying the last sections of a concrete floor. Their shoes were daubed with wet concrete and their overalls from the knees down were wet and muddy. Their gloveless hands, hard and knotty and rough, were smeared like those of children making mud pies. A truck backed in and dumped another mass of slushy concrete. Quickly they smoothed and mixed and patted it, then with a straight-edge leveled it with the floor.

The owner was busy answering questions on this job, and attending to customers. Workmen with streaked smudgy faces and rusty overalls came by with parts of cars. Down in the yard, old cars with their vitals torn out in front, stood on tireless wheels, hoodless and dilapidated. They had gone the last mile. Fords, Packards, Overlands, Cadillacs, tiny Austins and great trucks . . . one by one a wrecking crane dragged them from different parts of the yard and workmen rolled them over a fire. Black smoke and greenish and reddish flames leaped high as each old body was tumbled on.

In a corner was a bevy of newer cars. One, a Chevy coupe, had the front crushed in. Others had their windshields smashed. A top was folded flat, a front door crumpled. A dark gray sedan had the upper front twisted sidewise, the steering wheel bent upward, a great dinge by the driver's seat. There was blood on the new rubber mat and a deep dark blot had spread over the fine upholstered cushion.

Several other customers were there, and a workman began to adjust my horn. I noticed that the owner had a friendly greeting and a cheery personal word for everyone who came in.

"Don't you ever get tired and hot and lose your genial attitude?" I wondered.

He smiled broadly. "They're friends of mine, mostly. The customers that have come here, through the years, have built this building and made it possible for me to live well and own my pleasant home in the south suburbs. They are just the common people, certainly—but I've dealt with 'em long enough to know they're the salt of the earth."

His quick eye took note of my old car and my wife sweltering in the heat while the workman made the adjustments. "If you'll back, and drive in closer to the porch, I believe you can get your partner into the shade," he suggested, with quick solicitude.

I did so. My wife was grateful. We drove on, presently, happily tooting our new horn.

SPEAKER OUTLINES VITAL PART TELEPHONE PLAYS IN WAR-TIME

The great increase in wartime demands for telephone service, coupled with problems resulting from shortage of essential materials, was explained in a talk given at Tuesday's meeting of the Mansfield Rotary club by L. L. Evert, of Cleveland, information manager of the Ohio Bell Telephone company.

With "The Telephone In Wartime" as his subject the speaker pointed out the war-time importance of three factors — materials, morale and communications.

"Our armies and navies are scattered all over the world," Evert said, "and their vast movements can be directed by wire and radio more readily than was a single force on a local battlefront in the Civil war.

"Within the borders of our own country, we have the best communications system in the world, and the telephone industry's entire resources are at the disposal of the nation in our biggest job—winning the war."

Need for public co-operation in easing the extra burden thrown on telephone service was emphasized by Evert. "In emergencies," he said, "it is particularly important to refrain from using the service unnecessarily, because facilities will probably be required by the army, the civilian defense organization, police, fire or medical services, and results would be tragic if vital calls could not be put through.

"Undoubtedly the situation will get worse before it gets better. Already the equipment in some exchanges is handling more calls than it was designed for. Ordinarily we would be installing more equipment but as this cannot be done we must appeal to our customers to be sparing in their calls. Also—be as brief as you can."

L. R. Wittemire, manager of the Mansfield Telephone company, was program chairman of the meeting, which was held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

POWDER ROOM JURY ARRIVES

Women Mete Out Justice In Pennsylvania; Men Needed In Defense Work.

(By United Press)

PITTSBURGH — "Female justice" is being meted out in the courts here because of the war's drain on manpower.

Jury boxes are predominantly feminine, with most of them being filled by panels that are at least three-fourths women. All-women juries, once the nightmare of legal traditionalists, are becoming increasingly common in Allegheny county courts.

The men are being excused wholesale from jury duty because they are needed in the district's many defense plants.

"The courts are very ready to excuse men these days who hold national defense jobs," one judge explained.

Opinion in courthouse circles is that the women, in most cases are efficient and conscientious jurors, except that they are inclined to be "soft-hearted."

"Often women are reluctant to return a verdict carrying a heavy penalty," a spokesman from the district attorney's office said. "In murder cases, it's difficult to get them to send the defendant to the chair."

Although the women jurors are easy on defendants in criminal cases, they make it much tougher for the defendant in the civil suit as a rule, one attorney remarked.

He explained the women are inclined to award large damage verdicts, which cannot always be sustained in higher courts.

The women are more severe than men in morality cases, it was said, and are often at a loss in cases connected with business or stock transactions.

Belgium, the most densely populated country in Europe, averages 712 people to every square mile.

LAUNCH PLANS FOR DEFENSE WEEK PROGRAM

Civic Committee To Be Named To Arrange Mansfield Observance in July.

Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, Mansfield civilian defense chairman, today started preparations for a patriotic community celebration during the week of July 4 to 11.

Gov. John W. Bricker, chairman of the Ohio State Council of Defense, has called upon Mansfield and all the other 800 cities, towns and villages in the state to organize such demonstrations in observance of Civilian Defense Week, starting July 4.

The theme of the state-wide pageant of victory parades and demonstrations will be "Ohio Shows Her Colors," with the state defense council presenting ideas, suggestions and music to local and county councils, Bricker said.

All agencies of government, civic, fraternal and military organizations and representatives of labor, industry and agriculture will be asked to join the activity, the governor said.

"Each community," Bricker said, "or any group of communities acting jointly, will be in sole charge of whatever may be undertaken to show their people the meaning of total war, and how well that community is making its collective and individual contribution to the war to keep men free."

A civic committee will be appointed to work out details of Mansfield's participation in the activity, Kalbfleisch said.

The umbrella bird, found in tropical America, gets its name from a mushroom-shaped crest of feathers on top of its head which it can raise at will.

The burglar ransacked the house completely. Too bad for this couple when they get home—they aren't insured. It means a total loss. Don't let this happen to you. Insure yourself today

A Man's Woman + + +

By Jane Dixon

(Copyright, 1942)

CHAPTER VIII

The episode in the Sweet Shop —Tally's feigned dramatics, Eunice's malicious chill — this was one of many such Kay knew she must face. What was there in certain types of persons which gave them pleasure in the discomfiture of a fellow human being?

Tally actually reveled in the scene of surprise, the scene in which she cast herself in the privileged role of tormentor. Eunice, beneath her cloak of boredom, rejoiced at what she must feel was the total eclipse of an adversary. Only the man, the stranger, Gary Fowler, had given any humane response to what had been built into an awkward situation.

Gary Fowler. There was a ring to that name. The man rang true. He was vital. The way he had stepped forward, taken the scene into his own hands, had took the sting, the awkwardness from it. "I am Gary Fowler. You are Kay Kenyon." He had made that strange introduction seem so simple, so right.

Walking home through the early dusk, Kay heard again the deep vibrancy in the stranger's voice, felt the friendliness of his eyes upon her. He made the prospect of her home-coming less painful.

* * *

The Kenyon house was ominously quiet when Kay came up the front walk onto the porch. The lights were not yet on. There was no homely sound of food being prepared in the kitchen.

Kay called to her mother from the front hall. A rustling above stairs and Ellen Kenyon asked, "That you, daughter?"

"It isn't good Queen Bess," she replied cheerfully. "Come on down. I have loads to tell you. Home girl makes good in big business."

Ellen Kenyon began to descend the stairs timidly, as though she were walking on ice.

"Where's everybody? Not a creature stirring, not even a mouse," Kay said. "What's the matter, darling. You look sort of peek-ed?"

"It's been a dreadful day," Ellen confided. "Dreadful. Your Aunt Cora carried on like I've never heard her. It was your saying you'd go to work and threatening to move out of the house that upset her so. She says we don't dare move out of the house; that she'll give anyone who employs you such a piece of her mind they'll be glad to get rid of you. I tried to quiet her. I told her I was sure you'd listen to reason."

Kay switched on a light. She wanted to see clearly.

"I have listened to reason," she said. She was unafraid and her voice was deep and vibrant. "That's why I'm working. And regardless of what Aunt Cora may have to say about it, we're moving out of this house. We can't afford it. If she can, that is her affair?"

"But daughter, what will they do? Asa's business—"

"They'll do nothing as long as a cent of father's money remains. I have no idea of working to keep up with the Joneses or the Holmes or the Rosses or the Farnsworths. I'm working to keep a decent roof over our heads, you and I, Mummie . . . to pay for what we eat and what we wear so we won't be on the town in a few weeks or a few days or even right now. We owe everybody. It's shameful to take things you can't pay for, things you don't know if you ever can pay for. It's dishonest. It's cheating. I couldn't bear it another day."

"I know daughter — all those bills. But where will we go? This is our home, your father's home."

"It was our home," Kay said. Her voice was hard. "It's been a whole lot less than home since father left. Don't you worry dear. I'll find a place, a nice cozy little nook for the two of us and I'll find it right away, maybe tomorrow." She wished she felt as confident of that nook as she sounded.

Ellen Kenyon reproached herself. "I haven't even started supper. I thought it would be better to keep out of Cora's way. I'll fix it right now. Poor lamb, you must be starved."

"What?" Kay gave her mother a little-girl hug. "Starve, with cakes to the right of me, cakes to the left of me, chocolates in my eyebrows? It's you who needs nourishment, wee person. Anything in the ice box—I mean anything that will stick to ribs?"

Ellen brightened. "There's fresh eggs," she said. "The farmer who uses grandfather's pasture brought them to me this morning. He wouldn't take a cent for them or for the pat of butter either."

"Then what are we waiting for?" Kay swung her mother toward the kitchen. "We'll fry us up a platter of eggs and swim them in butter. Any buns?"

"A few. They're not exactly fresh—but toasted they'd be right nice. Maybe we should wait until the others come home, daughter. Maybe Cora will bring something from the grocer."

"If she does she'll probably be arrested for shoplifting." Kay took an apron from a closet, slipped it around her mother's waist. "The nice one," she said, "with the posies in it. Very becoming to you, too, Mrs. Kenyon. The posies match your face."

* * *

They laid supper in the breakfast nook. "It's fun, just the two of us here together, isn't it, Mumsie?"

Kay relaxed. The last of the impromptu meal was disappearing from the table. "We'll have lots and lots of evenings like this . . . Do you hear what I hear?"

The sound of a motor horn. A long blast and two shorts. Ronnie Farnsworth.

"It's the boy wonder," Kay said. "Now what would you think he'd want, keeping up that infernal racket? Come on darling, help me shut him out."

"No daughter, please." Ellen was flustered. "He's coming to take you for a ride, maybe. I'll just clear up the dishes."

"You'll clear up no dishes." Kay propelled her mother from the kitchen. "You'll help me persuade Ronnie to run sell his papers. Then we'll work on that costume—I suppose it is a costume—I'm to wear in the Sweet Shop. It needs to be shortened, so it just clears the floor or I'll be tripping over the ruffles and landing face first in the angel food."

Ronnie came onto the porch with his Great Dane hard on his heels. The dog was massive. All paws.

"Down, pup," he cautioned. "Ain't you got no manners? You're in the presence of ladies, fellow. Try to behave like a gentleman. And get your big feet off my new white slippers. Evenin' Miss Kay. How's the bon bon business?"

"So you've heard?" Kay laughed, deep in her throat. She was enjoying this escape from unreality.

Ronnie tugged at pup's ears. It was one of the rare times Kay had known Ronnie to show embarrassment.

"Who hasn't?" he said, defensively. "Tally put out a special extra immediately after she saw you in action. Eunice is issuing those underground bulletins that make everyone except herself hate her. Why, Red, you're the town topic!"

"You mean the town scandal, don't you chum?"

"Maybe the town scandal with those other lugs, but you're tops with me, Lady Bon Bon. Too bad you can't continue to carry on with the caramels."

"Oh but I am carrying on with the caramels." Kay's voice became hard again. "And with all their little sweetie cousins too."

Ronnie appealed to Ellen Kenyon: "You tell her, Mrs. Kenyon. She's looking through the wrong end of the glasses. She's not going to carry on with caramels."

Kay's chin was up again. She was defiant.

"Why not?" she demanded.

"Because you are marrying me." Ronnie tugged pup's ears. "You remember me. I'm that guy Farnsworth who has been slightly whacky about you, ever since you wore red pigtails and he wore a red, red nose."

Then seriously, "Kay, I'm an awful blot. I don't deserve it, but if you could care just enough to put up with me I'd go all the way for you . . . now and always."

DOMESTIC RELATIONS EXPERT URGES BUSINESS WOMEN TO WED

(By International News Service)

MT. PLEASANT, Mich. — A four-point program, pointing the way to better domestic and social relations, today was advocated by Dr. Paul Popenoe, general director of the American Institute on Family relations.

Principal steps urged by the institute director, upon beginning a forum at Central Michigan college, included:

1—Fulfillment of plans to marry, although the draft may soon call the husband.

2—Permission for certain professional women, now required to remain single, to marry.

3—Establishment of family wage scales.

4—Termination of parental domination.

In reply to a question most often asked, "Shall I get married although I may be called to the army?" Dr. Popenoe urged marriage wherever that would have been the intention despite the war.

After all, the director maintains, "the war will not be permanent."

Concerning professions calling for single girls, the doctor believes these fields may be improved if the women are permitted to marry. He particularly lashed the fields of social, library and nursing work, and said female teachers are much more successful if married.

The family wage scale, with increases in the base salary for a wife and each child, will be one benefit to come from the present war. Dr. Popenoe declared. He based his contention upon the belief that "service men—whose salaries in the army and navy now are paid according to the size of their families—will tend to carry the idea into civilian life."

Concerning his fourth point, letting young people develop emotionally as well as physically, he said:

"Parents are often selfish and want to hang on to their children even when they want to get married. We parents need to get over that idea in this generation and let our children 'grow up'."

War Plant Will Replace Civil War Landmark

COLUMBIA, Tenn. —(INS)—One of the last landmarks of the Civil War in Tennessee is being removed today to make way for the huge $3,000,000 activated carbon plant under onstruction near Columbia.

Still nameless even to its very end of existence, but occupying a pround place in the history of this section of the country, is the Confederate Fort which stood guard over the bridge and Duck river in Maury county, Tennessee.

The fort was built in 1864, and considered one of the best constructed in its time from an engineering and sanitation standpoint. The actual Fort, or barracks, lay behind two lines of breastwork atop the highest ground on the south bank of the Duck river, immediately overlooking the bridge which was an important rail transportation artery during the war between the states.

The fort played an important role in the battle of Franklin and the Batttle of Nashville in November and December, 1864.

Even as part of the fort was being dismantled, workers were already constructing temporary buildings to house officers who will direct erection of the new plant, which will produce activated carbon, an essential item in gas masks.

Wants Births Classified Under 'War Materials'

ANNISTON, Ala. — (INS) — Births should be classified under "war materials" an Anniston physician asserted on applying to his rationing board for permission to purchase a new automobile.

When the doctor applied for a new car he was asked, by board members, if he was "engaged in the production of war materials."

"During the month of March 1942, I attended the birth of 31 babies and had to miss several more because of my inability to get to them. I will average above 20 a month throughout the year and this practice alone necessitates the use of a new automobile and these cases must be attended to immediately when I am called.

"I believe this would come under war materials, maybe not for this war but for the next one."

SQUELCHED

SYDNEY, Australia — (U.P.) — A woman in Sydney handed a man in civilian clothes a white feather. In return she had a glass eye dropped into her hand.

The man was Lieut. Jack Perry, bearer of the Military Cross. He had an eye blown out in Syria, was wounded four times in Tobruk, and fought in Greece and Crete. He was on leave from an Australian hospital when he was accosted by the unknown woman and handed the symbol of cowardice.

SEEK RELIEF

WALLA WALLA, Wash.—(U.P.) —After all these years somebody finally is going to do something about those choking neckties men wear.

A society of Walla Walla men has wired President Roosevelt asking him, in the name of conserving cloth, to "liberate males" from the wearing of ties this summer. They signed the wire SETSOCOM, which spelled out means Society Eliminating the Stranglehold of Convention on Mankind.

Henderson Hints Resignation From OPA

THE WAR TODAY

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
(Wide World War Analyst)

Mohandas Gandhi's declaration that he soon will launch against British rule in India a movement which "will be felt by the whole world" is causing uneasiness among those who have some understanding of political conditions in that great empire of 400,000,000 people.

The Mahatma doesn't specify what form this movement will take. Gandhi never has been given to exaggeration, and his statement that he is going to stir "the whole world' shouldn't be taken too lightly.

Observers in New Delhi believe he may be planning a deliberate clash with the British, bringing about the jail sentence and hunger strike which he has made famous around the globe. Some in America take the speculation a step further and express fear that he may be figuring on leading the people once more into civil disobedience.

That can be a terrible weapon under any circumstances. In the midst of a war like this such a development might mean catastrophe, especially since the possibility of Japanese invasion of India hasn't been removed, and in any event the Allies are depending heavily on Hindustan to help defeat the Axis.

Civil disobedience as conceived by Gandhi means "peaceful resistance" to all governmental authority. In the past it has involved boycotts of British-made goods, withdrawal of Indians from government positions, and the ignoring of all government services, including legislatures, courts and tax officials. Such a program would be absolutely paralyzing if followed by the entire population, but the vast religious, political, social and racial divisions among the people always have prevented unity.

Under Gandhi's plan of operation civil disobedience is calculated to be wholly non-violent. He doesn't believe in using force even to prevent the invasion of his country by the Japs. In past experiments with this volcanic idea, however, he has been unable to control the machine once he got it rolling. Non-violence has given way to violence, and there have been widespread disorders and bloodshed.

Whether Gandhi could make civil disobedience universal today, and more than previously, is doubtful but there is small question that he could cause grave difficulties. Such a development might be the magnet which would draw a Japanese invasion. It might also disrupt war industry in this great allied arsenal.

Indian nationalists have been seeking support in America for their demand that Britain withdraw from Hindustan altogether. A pretty problem would be raised for any American sympathy if the nationalists should inaugurate a program detrimental to the war effort. The difference between India and Britain cease to be a private matter when they intrude on the trend of this World war upon which the security of so many nations depends.

The Allies haven't hesitated to crack down on Vichy, or occupy French territory, when such action was necessary to the welfare of the general cause. It is legitimate therefore to raise the question of whether the Allies would stand idly by while a civil disobedience campaign or any similar development in India threatened to make a present of victory to the Axis powers.

But the band business has a heart, and when one of its own is in trouble the boys have a way of forgetting hates and joining amicably to extend a common helping hand.

Last week Bunny Berigan, one of the great trumpet players, died, and it was discovered that he had left a wife and two children with no money and a bleak, desperate future to look forward to.

But that lasted only until the boys with the instruments found out about it. Mrs Berigan and her children were made secure for life. One leader made her a permanent member of his orchestra—in absentia — and assured her a weekly paycheck for the life of his band. Other maestros came across with substantial cash offerings. Mrs. Berigan's heart has been warmed, her future made secure, by those with whom, in life, her husband competed.

CORONER RULES BUND LEADER'S DEATH SUICIDE

Milwaukee Man Alights From Train, Places Head Under Wheels.

(By International News Service)

AUBURN, Ind. — George Froboese, a midwestern leader of the German-American Bund, committed suicide by deliberately placing his neck on the rail of a railroad track, authorities reported today.

Froboese was killed Monday night by the same train which had been carrying him to New York for an appearance in connection with an investigation of the Bund. He alighted from the train at Waterloo, Ind., about ten miles north of here, it was reported. Presumably walked back a couple of car lengths and lay his head on the rail, unnoticed in the dark.

His body was found two hours later with the head severed.

A verdict of suicide was returned by Coroner Robert Nathan after an inquest. Among possessions of the dead man, the coroner said, were books and records of the Bund and a subpoena from the office of the United States attorney in New York.

Froboese was 42 years old and had lived in Milwaukee. It was understood he was a national committeeman of the Bund and at one time editor of the Bund's newspaper, "Deutsche Weckruf and Beobachter." He maintained editorial offices in Chicago before the United States entered the war.

MILWAUKEE — (UP) — Mrs. George Froboese, wife of a German-American Bund official, who reportedly committed suicide under the wheels of a railroad train, said today that her husband had been "very nervous" recently.

She confirmed reports that her husband had left for New York in response to a summons from the federal district attorney to appear in an investigation of Bund activities.

Mansfield industrial employment in Mansfield totalled 10,933 — a drop of 12.47 per cent from the same month a year ago, the monthly business bulletin of the chamber of commerce reported today.

Included in this figure were approximately 700 Westinghouse employes furloughed in the final weeks of May, but still carried on company records as active workers during the period that they receive wages and adjusted compensation.

The May figure represented an increase of 715 over the preceding month, the report stated. Of the total number of employes in May, 7,871—or 72 per cent —were engaged in war production work.

New car registrations totalled 16, as against 459 in May 1941. Largely reflecting the auto situation, county sales tax receipts in May totalled only $43,514—a 45 per cent less from a year ago. Number of bus passengers rose from 176,000 to 210,000.

Bank clearings totalled $9,789,000—off 6.48 per cent. Building permits plummeted to $10,710—as against $24,275 for April and $191,580 for May of 1941. WOMAN DRIVER FACING CHARGE

Mrs. Helen Louise Gage, 45, of Mansfield R. D. 3, was arrested last night by Mansfield police on a charge of unsafe operation after her automobile had skidded across Park avenue west, near the Baltimore and Ohio railroad overhead crossing. She was to be arraigned in municipal court today at 1:30 p. m.

Police said that Mrs Gage's auto swerved to the left of the road cutting up the lawn and smashing signs in front of a filling station, skidded across the street for 125 feet, shearing off a utility pole, passed between two gasoline pumps and another pole and ran back on the road for another 350 feet before being stopped.

The car was badly damaged in the crash with the pole but she escaped injury. Police said that the street was slippery and that there was a mist in the air when the accident occurred.

AUTOMOBILE GRAVEYARDS YIELD SCRAP STEEL FOR WAR EFFORT

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND — Those striped collegiate jaloppies which went out of style when college boys joined the army and gasoline went under the card system, are making tons of first class fighting machinery for the armed forces.

E. S. Dowd, regional co-ordinator of salvage activities for Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky, reported today that the automobile graveyards in the tri-state area are "doing their share" in helping fill the nation's demand for an estimated $6,000,000 tons of scrap metal.

Wrecked automobiles from the three states yielded 51,038,000 pounds—more than 25,500 tons—of scrap metal during May, Dowd said. From that amount 2,041,560 thirty caliber machine guns, 272,208 thirty-seven millimeter field guns or 1,020,780 one-hundred pound aerial bombs can be manufactured.

"If cooperation from the owners continues throughout subsequent months, the present figures wil lbe far surpassed," Dowd said. "The first year of ou rcampaign should see some 500,000 joloppies a month converted into guns, tanks, ships and planes."

Present limitations on tires and gasoline should cause many of the owners of the 6,837,781 automobiles more than 10 years old in the country to haul them to the nearest graveyard, he said The federal bureau of industrial conservation is making a special appeal to "owners of cars no longer economically usable or repairable" to give their cars for scrap.

During May, Ohio automobile graveyards gave up 18,431 tons of scrap metal West Virginia yards yielded 1,573 tons of 3,140,000 pounds

Cuyahoga county, with 3,282,000 pounds, led all Ohio counties in the production of scrap metal from joloppies. Other counties which produced more than 1,000,000 pounds of scrap in May included Hancock 1,042,000 pounds; Stark 1,356,000 pounds; Wood 1,020,000 pounds

BINS TO ARRIVE

AAA to Supply Farmers With Grain Storage Equipment.

Richland county will receive a number of government grain bins before wheat harvest next month to help avert the grain storage problem, according to information received by Chairman Guy L. Taylor of the county AAA committee.

The bins will be shipped east from Iowa where they have been used for storing corn taken over by the government on loans to farmers.

Some of the bins will be huge metal containers with capacity for hundreds of bushels of wheat, Taylor was told by AAA officials. Others will be wood structures.

The storage problem became serious last year as more farmers started holding their grain under government seal and obtained federal crop loans on it. A big wheat crop in Ohio this summer is expected to create a greater problem.

FRIENDS SAY HE'S READY TO GIVE UP POST

Congressman Expresses Belief He'll Be Kept on Job Despite Criticism.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Price Administrator Leon Henderson today was reliably reported to have told friends that he has about come to the belief that it would be better for him to resign.

At the same time it was reported in congressional circles that President Roosevelt feels that Henderson had done a good job in the face of enormous difficulties which accompany administration of a price control system.

Influential congressmen, in touch with the inner-administration developments, generally expressed belief that Henderson will be kept in his post, despite severe criticism of OPA policies both in and out of congress.

Undaunted by criticism, Henderson has renewed his demand for legislation to permit the payment of subsidies to industries badly hit by price ceilings. He is said to feel that the ceilings must be maintained at all costs, and that payment of subsidies is the best means of relieving hardship cases.

While the senate recently rejected a proposal to permit use of a $5,000,000,000 fund given to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for payment of subsidies, the senate banking committee is expected to receive a new bill in the near future. Drafting of the measure was to be started today.

Henderson has been under almost constant fire from the congressional "farm bloc," with leading members charging that his price policies keep down the cost of living at the expense of the farmer. Some labor leaders have objected to Henderson's statements on wage stabilization.

Faced also with criticism from some Democratic senators that he has failed to consult them on appointments and is permitting Republicans to be named to state posts, Henderson has sought to make peace by asking advice of leading senators and representatives.

A canvass, however, disclosed that while he is seeking to "get along" with member of congress he has for the most part rejected all suggestions that the huge army of OPA employes be placed on a political basis.

Child-Widow, 14 Given 20-Year Prison Sentence

MORRISTOWN, Tenn. — (AP) — Jury of mountaineers has fixed a 20-year prison sentence for Mattie Pearl Manning, slender 14-year-old child widow, in the pistol slaying of her 35-year-old husband, Damon Manning.

The jury, in less than an hour, convicted the little girl last night of second degree murder after hearing her testify in a low voice: "I shot him. I thought he was going to shoot me. He threatened to kill me."

Her father, Frank Morgan, 50, was convicted of aiding and abetting in second degree murder and his punishment also was fixed at 20 years in prison. Defense attorneys said a new trial would be sought for Morgan and his daughter.

Sheriff Ben A. Creech said Mattie Pearl and her father first claimed that Manning had shot himself. Later, he added, Mattie Pearl admitted shooting her husband, a painter, on May 9. The officer further testified that Morgan told him last week he did the shooting instead of Mattie Pearl.

MILITARY CEREMONY AT WESTOVER FIELD

Louise Schuler Weds Lieut. Warren Hiner In Sunday Service at Westover Chapel In Massachusetts.

IN A BEAUTIFUL and impressive military ceremony at Westover Field, Mass., Miss Julia Louise Schuler became the bride of Lieut. Warren J. Hiner last Sunday afternoon. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Schuler, 4 Summit court.

The Rev. E. L. Cariker, chaplain, officiated for the single ring service in the Westover chapel. Lighted candelabra decorated the chapel. The bride wore a lovely full length white chiffon gown with long sleeves, which had lace insets in the yoke and sleeves. The dress buttoned in the back to a high round neckline.

The bridal veil of finger tip length held with an orange blossom tiara, was also worn by Miss Schuler's aunt, Mrs. John Gerger of Mansfield, for her wedding 16 years ago. The bride carried a prayer book and an old fashioned lace handkerchief, used 50 years ago for the wedding of her great aunt.

Mrs. Schuler wore an aqua dress with white accessories. For the occasion the bridegroom's mother chose a blue ensemble with white accessories. Immediately after the wedding, a dinner was held at the couple's new home, 58 Columbus avenue, North Hampton, Mass., for the immediate families and a few close friends. Afterwards they left for a five-day wedding trip around Boston.

Graduating from Mansfield Senior high school, Mrs. Hiner entered the Mansfield General hospital, where she received her degree of a registered nurse. The bridegroom also graduated from Mansfield Senior high school and was studying pre-dentistry at Ashland college prior to his enlistment. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don B. Diehl, 235 West Fourth street, and is at present with the army air corps at Westover Field.

SO YOU WANT TO BE A WAAC

By DOROTHY ROE
(Wide World Features Writer)

I'm a Yankee Dora Dandy.
Yankee Dora, that's my name.
I'm tired of darning socks,
Washing dishes, winding clocks.
I want to be a Yankee Doodle Doodle dame.

So you're going to join the Women's Army, and get-away-from-it-all.

You're going to trade in your typewriter or your cookstove, as the case may be, and join the heroines of history. You're going to be a modern Barbara Frietchie. Molly Pitcher and Joan of Arc all rolled into one.

That's what you think.

Better think it over, Dora dear, before you join the stampede of patriotic femininity that has swamped recruiting officers of the newly organized WAAC.

The life of a doughgirl in Uncle Sam's Army isn't going to be all pretty uniforms and big parades. If you're enlisting to get away from the housework, you may find that you wind up peeling potatoes and washing socks just the same. Both of those chores are among the jobs that are to be turned over to the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps.

No Gun for Jenny.

They're not going to give you a gun, you know. They're not going to let you lead a division into battle, riding a snow-white tank and waving a flag.

If they take you in the WAAC they're going to give you a job of work to do. Listed among the jobs that will be assigned to the women's army are: clerks, machine operators, cooks, bakers, stewardesses, dietitians, telegraph operators, hostesses, librarians, post exchange assistants, laundry workers, accountants, statisticians and bookkeepers.

The war department says there's a stiff course of training ahead for you. You're going to have to learn army discipline, just like Johnny Doughboy. You're going to have to march and drill and learn to snap a salute. Noboby's going to carry your pack if you get tired, or let you skip morning inspection to have your hair done.

How's Your I.Q.?

If you want to be an officer you must be between the ages of 21 and 49, a woman citizen of the United States of good character and perfect health. You must be a high school graduate, pass an intelligence test and furnish birth certificate and proof of citizenship.

If you want to be an auxiliary (corresponding to a private in the regular army) you must be between 21 and 45 years of age and fulfill the same requirements as officer candidates, except that a high school education is not necessary.

You can't be a WAAC if you are more than 15 pounds over or under weight. When you're in, it's for the duration of the war, and you'll have to go wherever Uncle Sam sends you, whether it's Australia or Russia or Des Moines, Iowa.

If you're still determined to join up, you at least have one advantage over the man volunteer, who must produce a statement from his wife that she is able to support herself. You can join the Women's Army without your husband's permission.

A Piece of Cake to Dream on

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE

Short leaves may speed up some plans for a wedding but there are certain traditions which should not be shunned.

The bride-to-be should be sure to wear "something old and something new, something borrowed and something blue." And a four-leaf clover in one shoe is bound to "bring luck."

Left-Overs Made Tasty And Easily

By BETSY NEWMAN

One of our little problems in this war situation is to use up every bit of food, not wasting a thing. There is no room in the present setup of home economies for the person who won't eat left-overs. There's the little matter of finishing up the egg whites or the yolks—whichever happens to be accumulating in the refrigerator. If the baby is being given the yolks of eggs, the whites are apt to become a drug on the market. I'm giving you a couple of recipes to enable you to use them up without much sugar.

Today's Menu.

Breakfast.

Fruit or Fruit Juice
Prepared Cereal, Milk
French Toast Syrup
Coffee Milk

Luncheon.

Creamed Salmon on Toast
Stewed Prunes
Chocolate Bread Pudding
Milk Tea

Dinner.

Macaroni with Meat
Buttered Beets
Cabbage, Green Pepper, Onion
Peanut Salad
Dessert Coffee or Tea

Salad.

1 cup shredded cabbage
¼ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped peanuts

Mix all together with your favorite dressing and serve cold.

Rhubarb Fluff.

2 cups rhubarb
2 tablespoons sugar
1-3 cup honey
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
2 egg whites
1 tablespoon additional honey

Wash rhubarb, cut into 1-inch pieces. Put into baking dish with sugar, honey and lemon juice, add 1 tablespoon water, cover and bake in moderately hot oven, 375° F., or cook over low heat on top of stove, until tender. Soften gelatin in cold water, dissolve in hot rhubarb sauce and set aside to cool until mixture starts to thicken, then whip until light. Fold into egg whites that have been beaten stiff with remaining tablespoon of honey.

Chocolate Bread Pudding.

2 squares unsweetened chocolate
1 cup light corn syrup
1 quart milk
½ teaspoon salt
2 cup dry bread crumbs
3 egg yolks
½ teaspoon vanilla

Melt chocolate in double boiler, add milk, syrup, salt and bread crumbs. Beat egg yolks, add hot mixture and vanilla, pour into greased baking dish, set in pan of hot water, and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) for about one hour, or until pudding is firm in the center. Serve hot with plain or whipped cream.

Strawberry Mallobet.

21 marshmallows
½ cup water
1 1-3 cups crushed strawberries
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons orange juice
¼ cup egg whites
Few grain salt
2 tablespoons sugar

Melt marshamallows with water in top part of double boiler; remove from heat, add berries and fruit juices. Cook until mixture starts to congeal. Beat egg whites stiff with salt. Add sugar gradually, beating it in as added, fold into strawberry and marshmallow mixture and turn into freezing tray of mechanical refrigerator and freeze, stirring several times until firm.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I PAID tribute to my father's astuteness in waiting until Lillian had given her wounded husband the kiss for which she had been granted permission, before intimating that he wished some decision from her which would mean a sacrifice of inclination equal to that which Harry had just made.

She raised herself from stooping over her husband as my father spoke, and whirled as if the words had been stiletto points pricking her flesh.

"What do you mean?" she demanded, almost truculently.

"I cannot tell you all that I mean," my father said equably, but firmly. "Please sit down and compose yourself before I tell you what it is I wish of you."

She obeyed him, but looked at once toward her husband.

"Are you in on this, Harry?" she asked with fierce insistence."

His smile was tenderly indulgent, but had in it the firmness to which she yields on the rare occasions when he exhibits it.

Agrees with Spencer

"Yes, dear, I'm afraid I am. I agree with the Chief absolutely; and so will you, I am sure, when you hear what he wishes of you."

Her eyes met his levelly for an instant, then turned back to my father's face.

"I am listening," she said, and I saw the corners of my father's mouth quirk in the amusement he generally finds in Lillian's unreasoning obstinacy, whenever her love for husband or daughter is involved.

"It's just this," he said. "I think I am justified in believing that we are getting closer to the men back of this search for Jack Bickett. Of course, Marion is simply a pawn in their game, and they will not harm her as long as they think she may be useful to them as a hostage, to help them get the information they want concerning Jack.

"In the last 24 hours, as I have just told you, we have been able to throw one or more effective monkey-wrenches into their machinery." Then, as Lillian straightened herself almost convulsively, he made a hasty amendment.

Asks Blind Obedience

"I don't mean that we have any idea just now of where Marion is hidden," he said, " but we are nearer to knowing than we have ever been since she disappeared.

"But"—and his pause made the word significant, "if I am to succeed in finding her, and in capturing the master spider in this far-flung web, I must have co-operation—yes, and blind obedience—from every one of you. Marion's life may depend upon that. Therefore I am asking you to do the thing I shall now designate, no matter how much your inclination rebels against it."

Lillian waited before answering him, her face set in lines of pain—and obstinacy. Then she capitulated royally, as she always does when she yields a point.

"I don't know to what I am committing myself," she said, "but—I'll be a good soldier, as I can see Harry has been."

"When Harry is in such shape that you can leave him," my father told her, "which ought to be in two or three days now, I wish you to go down to the farm and stay there for a few days."

Her face was suddenly drained of all color.

"The farm!" she repeated mechanically. "Leave here — where any word from Marion must come—"

"That is where you are mistaken," my father retorted. "No authentic word from Marion is coming here—or anywhere else—for quite a while. Give me credit for knowing something of the mental processes of these—I'd call them hyenas, but I'd have to apologize to the animals.

"The only messages that are coming here," he said, "are lying ones, designed to lead you into a trap. Don't you see that if they could get hold of you too, they would play upon Marion's love for you and yours for her in trying to get the information which they erroneously believe you to have?"

"I can have you guarded at the farm," he went on, and added, surprisingly, "It is impossible here."

Marriage License Business Spurts In Bucyrus Court

BUCYRUS — The marriage license bureau in probate court experienced a spurt in business Tuesday when two couples were granted licenses to wed and applications to marry were filed by five couples.

Licenses were issued to Lawrence Eldred Harmon, 29, Harpster, O., farmer, son of Eugene and Blanche Harmon, and Martha Margaret High, 35, New Washington, teacher, daughter of William and Anna High, and to Donald Wyndham Dewald, 27, Crestline, physician, son of Clarence and Rae Dewald, and Eleanor Frances Iman, Crestline, teacher, daughter of C. E. and Eva Iman.

Applications were filed by the following couples:

George Ritzler, 23, Bloomville R. D. 2, farmer, son of Ed and Myrtle Ritzler, and Donna Collene Shupp, 18, Bucyrus R. D. 1, stenographer, daughter of Milton and Edith Shupp.

Charles Joseph Rotz, 19, Crestline, railroad worker, and Lucille Delores Beale, 19, Galion, factory worker, daughter of Grover and Catherine Beale.

Joseph J. George, 27, Massillon, machine operator, son of Joseph and Bessie George, and Myrtha Rosalyn Alto, 22, Galion, stenographer, daughter of George and Louise Alto.

Karl Stern, 38, Chicago, tailor, son of Adolf and Sara Stern, and Gertrude Tisser, 25, Galion, cleaner, daughter of Sinai and Eva Tisser.

Charles Lester Wertz, 34, Attica, truck driver, son of George and Sarah Wertz, and Anna Elizabeth Leonhart, 33, New Washington, domestic, daughter of G. A. and Minnie Leonhart.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, June 18.

The Sidereal forces operative on this day make for a lively, enterprising and pleasant state of affairs, with much to be gained through travel, communications, change, agencies, literary and artistic pursuits of various phases and forms. The danger however may be found in a highly stimulated urge for the pursuit of pleasure or gratifications of the emotional or romantic impulses.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which the pursuit of pleasure, romance or emotional indulgences may predominate above business or practical endeavors. In the latter channels there is opportunity for profit and success through travel, change, agencies, communications.

A child born on this day may be disposed to the pursuit of pleasure with the emotional, sentimental and romantic uppermost rather than business.

Truth and Rationing Problems

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Perhaps no other single factor in the experience of most parents has ever put our moral fiber to so severe test as rationing. Few of us will come through it with an unscathed conscience. While in some matters we might prove exemplary there may be a great temptation to the most upstanding parent to cheat a little when it comes to rationing.

The chief reason for trying to abide by all the rules in rationing is to prove truly patriotic. Naturally we do not understand all the reasons for certain denials thrust upon us. Nevertheless, we know we can't have our democracy long unless we are willing to come wholeheartedly to its defense. Rationing is one of the ways the representative leaders of our democracy have evolved for helping assure victory.

The Child and Rationing.

Now let us think of this matter in relation to our children and their moral growth and citizenship. Our failure to cooperate loyally in the rationing program hampers the speed toward victory. It does something more. It undermines our own moral integrity and self-esteem. Still worse, it does irreparable harm to the moral and mental health of our children.

I wonder how much penitence and praying and struggle for righteousness it would take to repair the damage we parents might do our children in reporting no sugar on hand when our children knew there were two hundred pounds of it, or even five pounds.

Opportunity for Parents.

Perhaps the best solution would be for the parents to make a clean breast of the matter, even now, and confess it to the authorities. Perhaps the next best thing is to sit down with the children and make clear to them the wrong done and our sorrow for having done it. It may be manifest to the children that the parents really wished to look after the comforts and convenience of their children. Then these children might also see that such a procedure was still wrong since the rights of the larger community, even of the nation, were ignored.

You and I know we can have the happiest family atmosphere when we feel no occasion to hide anything from anybody or from any organization or person outside the family. Being forced to cover up matters constantly can cause no end of conflict within an individual or between him and others of the family group. The results might be all sorts of anxieties and irritations. So with the sugar. The child may be warned to tell no one about it. See what conflicts he might have, especially as he hears others criticized for concealment and failure to report.

What an opportunity we parents have in connection with rationing to work on our own moral and spiritual growth and that of our children. At home, in school and in Sunday school, let us strive to lead the child to think beyond himself, not only in terms of his immediate family group or associates but also in terms of the welfare of still larger and larger groups. In doing so we really educate in democracy and cultivate effective patriotism.

A copy of my "Prayer for Parents" may be had without cost to you by writing me in care of this paper enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Q. My seventeen-year-old son won't talk to us about where he is going, where he has been or who his friends are.

A. You have pried too much into his private affairs. Work for the next several months to prove you are a companionable parent and not a detective and prosecuting attorney in relation to him. We can win a youth's confidence. We can't get it through inquisitions.

"The Authority on Authorities"

ANOTHER PURPOSE

Ruffing by the declarer has as its primary function the getting rid of a loser or losers in his hand. The secondary purpose is sometimes more important. It may be to shift the lead to the dummy, for the laying down of established cards, the leading to a finesse or otherwise. Or it may be to help set up the long card or cards in some suit held by the declarer. Careful choice of what to ruff and what to discard may, and often does, decide the fate of a contract.

Here is a deal on which pretty application of one principle is reported by officials of the New England Bridge association. It was a duplicate game, and several kinds of bidding occurred, but at most tables the heart Q was led against 5-Clubs or 6-Clubs. The A, of course, won, a spade on the first trick, consequently holding him to 11 tricks.

Where the slam contract was made, South carefully decided to discard a diamond, because he selected the plan of setting up his fifth spade. A club was next led to the K, when East played low, then the spade A and a small spade, ruffed by North. The diamond A put South in for a second ruff, and dummy returned its third trump. Now it made no difference when East decided to take his A, as the spades were set up and no tricks could be taken by the defense except the trump A.

Soldier Berates Infidelity of Girl Friends

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Following is such a complete answer to the scores of letters received on the fidelity of girls becoming engaged to soldiers and then transferring their affections to men nearer at hand, that I'm going to give it in full:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I read your article about a girl who promised to marry a soldier and changed her mind. I know what happens to soldiers in such cases, for my experience has been almost identical. Perhaps, this girl's intentions were good, but there are many girls who go ga-ga over a uniform and say a lot of things they don't mean.

"They meet a man in the service and tell him how much they love him. He goes back to camp and dreams of her night and day until he finally gets another pass. He goes to town and finds her dated up with someone else. Back to camp he goes, hating the Army for what she has done to him. He slouches in his work, gets into trouble with his superiors and finally winds up doing kitchen police. Or he may get so disgusted he goes A.W.O.L.; then comes court martial and he's lost his chances for a rating.

"Meanwhile the girl goes on throwing the same old line to someone else. A soldier's all right when it comes to stopping bullets, but he doesn't make enough money to show most girls a good time. After I was inducted into the service, my girl friend got married, and since then I'm afraid I've made things miserable not only for myself but for the boys I bunk with.

"I didn't ask her to promise to wait for me and told her to enjoy herself, for it might be a long time before I'd get back. A man who goes into the service and asks a girl to wait for him is just crazy or something. Naturally, she'll meet someone who'll take his place. In my case she told me ahead of time what was happening, and there wasn't a thing I could do about it.

"That's the trouble with the Army. They take you far from your home, family and friends and expect you to be happy. I've lost a lot of sleep thinking about this girl and the good times we had for nearly two years. Army life would be fine if you could expect a friend to drop around once in a while, but to be in a strange camp and take a six-hour pass into a strange town is miserable.

"I know they can't satisfy all of us and I don't expect them to make me an exception, but I know there are the same jobs near my home town as there are down here and I could do better work if I didn't feel so utterly alone. But it would be useless for me to ask for a transfer. A good many of the boys feel just as I do. How do they expect us to maintain morale if girls promise things they don't mean?

"Private J."

This letter is so absolutely typical of many that have come to this column, I'm going to ask boys in all branches of the service to have their say in this column. How do you feel about this enlisted man's letter?

Keep Nails Nice During War Work

By MME. QUI VIVE

Juliet's hands, we are told, were like little white butterflies. But Juliet never had a war job, nor was it necessary for her to scrub the kitchen floor. Some of us had lily-like hands in the past, but now some of them look like paws. If there ever was a time when hand care was demanded, it is now. It is to our credit to have useful mitts, it's noble to be capable, but we want them to look pretty, don't we?

Finger nails are having a tough time. No sense trying to have them long. File 'em to a neat oval, a practical length. They'll be less likely to break.

Some nails are stronger than others, just as some hands take fairly good care of themselves, even when they come in contact with hot and cold water dozens of times a day. Brittle nails, it is supposed, are due to a diet deficiency. Some day we'll know more about that. The best thing to do for them is to give them a hot oil soaking twice a week.

You can use olive oil, but mineral oil is cheaper, and these are money saving times. Get some from your druggist. Spread out your favorite magazine on the kitchen table, have a small container of hot oil on either side of you. Soak the nails for fifteen minutes.

This is an opportunity to give your cuticle some attention. Have the orangewood stick at hand, run it under the flesh, freeing it from the nail fabric. It is when the cuticle clings that it breaks into shreds, produces hangnails that makes a woman as mad as a wet hen.

Start at the left side of the nail, be extra gentle when treating the nail base, finish at the other side. If you dig up a hangnail, clip it away with the curved needle-point scissors, pointing the ends toward the nail base.

Friction is fine for human talons. Keeps the surfaces smooth and delicate. Brings good coloring. The nail itself is white and transparent, gets its rosy glow from the flesh beneath. Use the thumb. Work with an up and down motion.

Every night, after you have given yourself a three-minute facial, rub the leavings of the cream into your nails. Only takes a minute. This treatment is not as effective as the hot oil soaking, but it helps.

When filing the nails, don't shape far down at the sides, a practice that will make the flesh tender. The result will be thickened, rough cuticle, which is nothing to yodel about.

Some of the best marksmen in the state of Ohio will be in Mansfield over the week-end when the Mansfield Muzzle Loader Rifle club stages its third annual shoot.

And some of the oddest looking blunderbusses you ever saw will be carted up to the firing line. Many of the old timers will bring their own hand made guns to the event.

And the women will be in there firing away too. Last year Mrs. Walter Grote of Canton copped top honors in the 50-yard prone match with a score of 48 out of 50. And her husband took first in the 50-yard prone flintlock match with 46.

* * *

Mansfielders didn't do too well in their own shoot a year ago failing to win a single championship in 11 events. But Tom Kelser of Shelby crashed through with a first in the 30-yard offhand, and first in the 50-yard prone open sight events, and first in the offhand aggregate.

Joe Adams was the best scoring Mansfielder, finishing ninth in the 30-yard offhand, 12th in the 50-yard prone metallic sights, second in the 50-yard prone for shooters over 60, and tenth in the 100-yard prone.

* * *

I like the publicity sent out by the Muzzle Loader club for the big meet, particularly the line which says: "The only club that has a Davenport." I could go for a load of that myself.

* * *

Mike Hallabrin told me his son John was supposed to be in that marine movie at the Ohio the first of the week, marching down the avenue to the boat toward the tail end of the picture.

So Red Hamman and I went up to see if this was so, and we looked and looked and we didn't see any Johnny Hallabrin.

Maybe Mike was spoofing us. But he did get me into a movie for the first time in eight or nine months. Along about 1947 I think maybe I'll go again sometime.

* * *

Did you see it? A full page picture of a flock of marines marching down Pennsylvania avenue it was, and there in the middle of the front line was a guy who looked the spittin' image of Henke, star halfback of the Mansfield high school football Tygers of two years ago

Half of Mansfield must have written in to Life to find out is it Henke. But it wasn't Henke.

Cardinals Also Are In League

Somebody Should Tell Dem Bums About It.

By SID FEDER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THIS is just to let the happy Gowanus girls and boys in general and Larry MacPhail's Brooklyn Bums in particular in on a little secret. . . . There really is another team in the National league.

The way the pats on the back are bouncing around the Flatbush side of the East river these days, no one seems to realize that the Dodgers may be in a fight for that pennant yet. But just in case it's been overlooked over there, the St. Louis Cardinals are on the prowl. And with six wins in a row and 14 out of their last 17, they are strictly not an outfit to be brushed off like a blond hair on your coat lapel.

* * *

At any rate, the season's first "crooshal" series is looking up to start Thursday, when the use-to-be gas housers wheel their circus into Ebbets Field. At this writing, the Cards are just 4½ games away, having disposed of the Giants 4-3 yesterday.

* * *

And, taking another chunk out of the same steak, it might be pointed out that the Red Sox, over in the American league, also can still make trouble, even if the New York Yankees are bouncing along on a nine-game lead after splitting their five-hour twin bill with Detroit yesterday. The Red Sox knocked off St. Louis 4-2 last night to run their winning streak to nine in a row.

The Brooklyns were idle yesterday as the Cards started their eastern swing against the New Yorkers.

Over in the American league, the Yanks and Tigers put on something new—starting a double header in Detroit at 3 p. m. The Bronx boys blew the first game 7-6 on Rudy York's 14th homer of the year and Jimmy Bloodworth's eighth. Fireman Johnny Murphy arrived with his hook-and-ladder curve and gave the Yanks a 5-3 decision in the nightcap.

* * *

Completing the American league picture, Rookie Orval Grove and husky Bob Harris hooked up in a tight tussle at Chicago under the lights, and Grove won out 2-1 as the White Sox nipped the Athletics on a ninth-inning run to climb into sixth place in the league standings. The Washington-Cleveland party was postponed.

* * *

Johnny Vander Meer had his "swift" and his slants just right at Boston and pitched the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-0 victory over the Braves with a seven-hit performance Another of the day's neat twirling jobs was the seven-hitter served up by Johnny Podgajny. The result was the Phillies ended their nine-game losing string by pounding the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1.

Big Ten Wins Track Meet

Upset Dope in Beating Pacific Coast Stars.

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

EVANSTON, Ill.—(AP)—Big Ten athletes upset their Pacific coast foes last night to break for the first time the track mastery the westerners have enjoyed in the six years the two conferences have been meeting.

Fresh from dominating the National Intercollegiate meet at Lincoln, Neb., the best the Coast boys could do was capture first places in six of the 15 events with Southern California, the N. C. A. A. champion, winning two of them.

* * *

The point totals were 69⅓ to 57⅓ in favor of the Big Ten, which never before had come within 24 points of winning. The Big Ten took all three places in the discus throw while the coast stars slammed the shotput event.

* * *

There were two double winners. California's Hal Davis won the 100-yard dash in 9.5 and the 220 in 20.4, both new meet records, and Ohio State's Bob Wright took both hurdles. He set a record of 14 seconds flat in the 120-yard highs Other records were not threatened.

Only one of the meet's three exhibition performances was successful. Dwight Eddleman, Centralia, Ill., prep high jumper, cleared 6 feet, 6 inches, two inches above the collegians' best. The Great Lakes Naval training station mile relay team finished last as the coast quartet won, and Cornelius Warmerdam failed in three attempts to clear 15 feet in the pole vault.

Tribe Calls on George Susce

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians don't play the Washington Senators until tonight but already they've called for relief from the bullpen.

* * *

With Catchers Gene Desautels and Jim Hegan on the injured list, the Tribe yesterday placed George Susce, who has been coaching pitchers in the bullpen, on the active list.

To make it possible for the veteran backstopper Susce to play, however, the Tribe had to release relief hurler Clint Brown to keep within the 25-player limit.

Weather cancelled yesterday's game.

Prefers Fame In Another Field

(Wide World Features)

KINGSTON, R. I.—Probably to his chagrin, for he has developed Rhode Island State track teams that have won 25 consecutive dual meets, Coach Fred Tootell has become famous, rather for the number of accomplished hammer-throwers he has trained here to follow in his footsteps

About $60,000 worth of program ads already have been sold, so it looks as if there wouldn't be much trouble passing the $100,000 set as the goal for the meet . . . Larry MacPhail has served notice on Dodger fans that tickets bought from speculators will be refused at the gates . . . If anybody collects a "service charge," Larry wants to do it himself . . . SOFT ANSWER

When Jack Zeller, the Tigers' general manager, began scouting around for another catcher in case the Army should accept Birdie Tebbetts, he struck on the idea that the Braves might be persuaded to part with Ernie Lombardi . . . His first move was to soften up Casey Stengel with an expensive dinner; then he popped the question . . . "Well, no," Casey replied thoughtfully "We're honest people. You see, Lom is Class 1-A inthe draft." . Zeller wrote off the dinner as a bad investment.

Fleming Rates As Prize Rook

Pesky, Lamanno, and Head Share Honors.

By DILLON GRAHAM
(Wide World Sports Editor)

NEW YORK —. Now that the major league races have passed the quarter-pole, let's have a call-over on the rookie performers.

The Dodgers, with batting champion Pete Reiser, and the Yankees, with flashy Shortstop Phil Rizzuto, boasted the rookie-of-the-year in the two major loops last year. And this year almost every club has a fairly strong candidate for top honors.

Early in June Catcher Ray Lamanno of the Reds in the National league and Shortstop Johnny Pesky of the Red Sox and First Baseman Les Fleming of the Indians in the American were pacing the 95 first-year men at bat. Young Ed Head of the Dodgers led the twirlers.

On the basis of the first two months play, here is this corner's idea of an all-star major league rookie team:

First Base — Les Fleming, Cleveland.
Second Base — Len Merullo, Chicago Cubs.
Shortstop — Johnny Pesky, Boston Red Sox.
Third Base—Nanny Fernandez, Boston Braves.
Outfield — Orls Hockett, Cleveland.
Outfield—Stan Musial, St. Louis Cards.
Outfield—Willard Marshall, New York Giants.
Catcher—Ray Lamanno, Cincinnati.
Pitcher—Ed Head, Brooklyn.
Pitcher—Early Wynn, Washington.

Merullo is a shortstop but is moved to the other side of the keystone sack because there are no rookie second basemen, although Washington is playing a shortstop, Bobby Repass, there temporarily There might be an argument at shortstop, for both Pesky and Vernon Stephens of the Browns are fine fielders and while Pesky is outhitting Stephens, the latter has driven in more runs. The same situation applies at third base where Lou Blair of the A's has knocked in more counters than Fernandez, who boasts the bigger batting average.

Here are the American league standouts:

First Base—Fleming.
Second Base—Repass.
Shortstop—Pesky.
Third Base—Blair.
Outfield—Hockett.
Outfield—Ned Harris, Detroit.
Outfield—Glen McQuillen, St. Louis.
Catcher—Otto Denning, Cleveland.
Pitcher—Early Wynn, Washington.
Pitcher—Hal White, Detroit.

And this looks like the best National league roundup:

First Base—Ray Sanders, St. Louis.
Second Base—Mickey Witek, New York.
Shortstop—Merullo.
Third Base—Fernandez.
Outfield—Musial.
Otufield—Marshall.
Outfield — Tommy Holmes, Boston.
Catcher—Lamanno.
Pitcher—He
Pitcher—Lou Tost, Boston.

Merullo is placed at his regular shortstop post and Mickey Witek, who played a few games for the Giants last year and is not exactly a newcomer, takes over second.

GAMES POSTPONED

Mansfield softball league USO benefit games were postponed last night until next week because of the weather.

Thinks Maybe Joe Louis Is Bit Embarrassed Too

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK—(INS)—I think Joe Louis himself must be a little embarrassed these days when every time he comes to New York he winds up at some kind of a testimonial where people shove plaques or parchment scrolls or framed tributes toward him, then stand back to get a load of the reflected glory.

If Louis and his handlers—those outside the army—are smart they will immediately put a stop to the nonsense engineered in his behalf. It so happens that he is a great fighter—perhaps the best of them all—and he also is a great person within himself, but the practice of fawning over him has reached the point where it might become a racket.

* * *

It seems that every time you look up former Mayor Jimmy Walker is handing Joe some bric-a-brac of one kind or another and saying all over in different words what a great guy the heavyweight champion has been and will continue to be. Louis accepts all this because it is handed to him, but might be smart to make a public announcement that he wants no more tributes for the time-being.

* * *

He is a corporal in the United States army and as such would be justified in suggesting that the testimonials be held in behalf of the Colin Kellys, or the mothers who've lost some sons in the actual fighting.

There is a movement on to erect a statue to Louis in New York, and I would like to be the first to suggest nothing could be in worse taste at this time.

I refuse to believe that the advisors of the negro prizefighter would be so utterly stupid as to permit the building of a statue to him now. The timing is very bad While Louis is a fine person and a great fighter in the ring, he has n't quite reached stardom in the war theater yet. You can't overlook the rest of the gents who are dying every day.

The boxing writers of New York made a grievous mistake only last Sunday in presenting Louis with another badge, or plaque or scroll of some kind during the charity show at the Polo grounds It just so happens that Louis was not the whole show there and has been piled up with so many trinkets that it seemed incredible that we who profess to have a rational attitude about such things would go for that.

There must come a time eventually when Joe Louis can arrive at a given spot without finding a delegation all set to award him some honor or other.

* * *

I refuse to believe that being a corporal in the army or the heavyweight champion entitles him to any more attention or honors than Corp. Joe Blow, from Hog Wallow, Miss., who left his family and friends and fireside the same as Louis did.

And as for all this nonsense about his being permitted to fight again to pay his last year's income taxes, you can forget that, too, for there probably are several hundred in the army facing the same problem.

The answer to that from some quarters will be that Louis fought twice for service relief funds and thus deserves a chance to make some money for himself. All I know is that we are in a war and that as far as I am concerned everybody looks alike, especially when you consider that others besides the army and navy made money out of those relief fund fights.

Against Buddy Baer Louis' end was $62,200, of which $47,100 went to the service fund and the rest went for expenses; in the Louis-Simon fight the champion gave $36,146 out of his purse of $45,882, which left something over for his handlers again.

It looks as though the heavyweight champion's handlers have been doing all right without any plaques for him and let's not mention the Colin Kellys again.

ALSAB INJURED

NEW YORK—(INS)—Alsab, the so-called wonder horse, today was recovering from an ankle injury sustained when he was beaten by Shut-Out in the historic Belmont Stakes on June 6. The famous colt was fired for a splint yesterday and will be shipped later in the week to Chicago to rest up before he resumes training for the Arlington classic in the middle of July.

Suffolk Downs Opens Again

Horsemen Send 81 Entries to Post.

BOSTON — (AP) — While Massachusetts' three-man racing commission serves as an arbitration board today, the dissatisfied horsemen at Suffolk Downs will help the management reopen its gates by sending 81 of their horses postward for its eight-race Bunker Hill day program.

* * *

While the thoroughbreds resume racing and the track's huge pari-mutuel plant reopens after a one-day strike, the racing commissioners will confer with the management and attempt to end the deadlock that resulted when the horsemen demanded a 20 per cent increase in the $1,000 minimum purses and the distribution over all other events of any prize money that accrued when a claiming race was substituted for an advertised stake event.

* * *

The state commissioners have assured both parties in the dispute that they will hand down their findings by tomorrow at the latest and that their decision will be retroactive to today's racing.

Sonny Horn Keeps Record Intact

NEW YORK — (AP) — Middleweight George (Sonny) Horne of Niles, O., kept his unbeaten string of victories intact in his 18th pro encounter last night.

* * *

He won a decision over Vic Dellicurti, New York veteran, in a six round bout. The go was trimmed from a scheduled eight rounds on a state boxing commission ruling that Horne, 18 years old, was too young to engage in an eight-rounder. Horne weighed 152¾ to Dellicurti's 152½.

* * *

George Kochan, 154, Akron, won over Larney Moore, 149, Hempstead, N. Y., by a technical knockout in the seventh frame of their scheduled eight round tilt

PAYMENT OF $22 BY ENLISTED MAN IS OPTIONAL. GOV'T CONTRIBUTES ONLY WHEN ENLISTED MAN DOES

Congress has given the American service man the highest base cash pay of any warrior in the world with recently enacted legislation. Benefiting under the measure are the first eight ranks of men in army, navy coast guard and marines. Also, as shown here, definite provision is being made for dependents.

If an enlisted man has dependents in both the "A" (mandatory) and "B" (optional) groups and elects to contribute to both, the total deduction from his pay is $27, of which $22 goes to the "A" group, the rest to "B." Total payment to one parent is then $20 instead of $37, but payments to other dependents by the government remain unchanged.

3,000 USE BUCYRUS SWIMMING POOL DURING FIRST TWO WEEKS

BUCYRUS—Bucyrus city council heard a financial report of the new municipal swimming pool for the first two weeks of its operations; passed emergency legislation giving the "go head" to government construction of water lines to service the camp at the county fairgrounds and authorized city milk inspection in a three and a half hour session Tuesday night.

A total of 3001 tickets were sold during the first 15 days the swimming pool was in operation with total receipts of $1,785.93, Carl Light, chairman of the park board reported. In addition to accepting the financial report, a recommendation that a sidewalk be constructed around the two sides and the front of the bath house was accepted and the park committee authorized to go ahead with construction. Recommendation that a roadway be constructed from the ford across the river to the south side of the park, was not accepted this time, for financial reasons.

Terminating a lengthy discussion, council approved by a vote of 4 to 3, a motion to provide $25 a month expense money for the county sanitary engineer to make a city milk inspection. Recommendation that the expense allowance be made was made by City Health Commissioner Dr. W. G. Carlisle, who advised that no milk would be purchased by the army at the faigrounds unless it was properly inspected. Councilman James Kehrer reported that a $66 milk contract with a local dairy had been terminated by army order and the milk contract given to a Mansfield company, because the necessary inspection had not been made.

Emergency legislation authorizing the service director to enter into a contract for the construction of water lines connecting two dead ends at the fairgrounds to provide adequate water to the camp was authorized by council after Capt. Blyle, construction engineer, appeared and made a proposal for the work. By terms of the contract the city will pay approximately $1,800 for laying the lines, the government to provide the material. Construction of the water lines are necessary to maintain sanitation and fire protection.

Other business to come before council was the appointment of a committee composed of the park committee and the mayor and service director, to investigate the possibility of providing play supervision at Harmon playground.

YOUR ATTENTION, PLEASE!

On November 23rd we delivered a 1942 Pontiac DeLuxe Torpedo six-passenger 2-door town sedan to Mr. Lloyd Weiland, who has only driven it 1900 miles. It is finished in Skipper blue body with beautiful broadcloth upholstering. We equipped it with our radio, heater, defrosters, and air conditioning unit, and numerous other accessories. This car delivered for $1269. NOW—this gentleman is leaving for duty with the armed forces of our nation. We have special permission from the rationing board to deliver this car to anyone desiring to own it. It will carry a new car warantee as if it had never been driven, and the owner will be entitled to the regular 2000 mile service. This car is on display in our showroom. P. S. TRAVEL DOWN

BLYTHE, Cal.—(U.P.)—Quarantine station figures reveal that government rationing of new tires and automobiles is already affecting traffic into California, with the number of passenger cars decreasing and bus travel increasing.

Inspectors checked 10,843 cars here in February, compared to 11,646 for the same month in 1941. Stage traffic over U. S. highway 60 into California increased, however, and passengers were nearly double the 1941 February total.

Weekly Report Shows Gain In Demand For Industrial Electric Power.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Small gains were fairly numerous in the stock market today.

Higher were Western Union, Republic Steel and Anaconda. Chrysler, Sears Roebuck and American Can were unchanged. Down a shade were Chesapeake & Ohio, Bethlehem Steel and General Electric.

Steadily mounting industrial demand for electric power was reflected in the weekly Edison Electric Institute report showing energy consumption for the period ended June 13 at 3,463,528,000 kilowatt hours, a rise of 2.7 per cent over the previous week and 11.7 per cent above the like period of 1941.

The more than seasonal increase carried the Associated Press index of power output to 161 3 per cent of the 1929-30 average compared with the year's low of 152.

SEES LEPROSY INCREASING AS WAR SPREADS

Mission Officials Say War Disrupts Work in Leper Colonies.

(By United Press)

CHICAGO—War is increasing leprosy throughout the world because poverty, disease, low living standards and malnutrition are paving the way for it, according to the American Mission to Lepers.

As new victims contract the infection, medical care for lepers is made more difficult and in some places has been shut off entirely, the Mission said.

As a result, Dr. Eugene Roland Kellersberger, New York, the mission's secretary, who was here for the 16th annual meeting of the mission's midwest area, predicted that the next few years would add new thousands to the present 10,000,000 known cases of leprosy.

Even the United States, with the highest living standards the world has ever known, is not free from this disease, he reported. Immigrant Cubans, Mexicans and Orientals comprise the bulk of the victims in this country.

War already has blacked out a fifth of the worlds leper colonies, where medical science finally had attained some success in the long struggle to segregate and check the disease, Dr. Kellersberger said.

In places like East China, Indo-China, Thailand, Burma and the Philippines, he declared, the Japanese invasion has wiped out the work of years.

"Six thousand lepers at Culion Colony in the Philippines, maintained by the United States government, faced starvation after the invasion," he said.

"The Japs refused to let a boatload of rice go through.

"Thanks to Gen. MacArthur and his forces, the best boat went through anyhow, and temporarily at least, these victims of the worlds oldest scourge are being fed.

"It is incredible that this work of mercy should be shut off. Yet some of the doctors and nurses at Culion are in Jap prisons, and the usual care given to the lepers is gone with the wind."

Dr Kellersberger was decorated three times by Belgium for his work with leprosy and African sleeping sickness in the Belgian Congo, where he spent 24 years as a medical missionary.

PLAN AFFECTS COUNTY LITTLE

their wives were employed or otherwise not dependent on their husbands for financial assistance.

This belief has been fostered by the congressional action to provide financial aid for dependents of soldiers and sailors—this bill was passed by the house yesterday—and by the bill hiking the base pay of the armed forces to $50 a month. The latter measure, signed today by President Roosevelt, is designed to cover contributions to dependents.

However, there have been frequent statements in recent weeks to the effect that married men will receive deferment because of their family status. The dependency bill approved by both branches of congress gives the president authority to defer men having wives or children with whom they maintain a bona fide relationship in their homes

This legislation means that a married man whose dependents have adequate income from other sources could be deferred because of his family relationship.

Chairman May (D., Ky.), chairman of the military committee told the house that the purpose of the amendment covering this phase of the bill was to emphasize the congressional policy "not to break up the institution of the home."

Men at the heads of households will not be drafted until all other available manpower has been exhausted, May said

Since such other available manpower in Richland county is considerably depleted, even though not exhausted, it appears likely that the current congressional talk about deferment for men simply because they are married will have very slight effect in the county.

DRAFT EVADERS GO TO PRISON

Ohioans Get Four-Year Terms on Selective Service Charges.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Two northern Ohio men face four-year prison terms today on selective service charges

Lester Lenhart, 26, of North Lawrence, Stark county, received the other four year sentence, He told Judge Freed that he failed to report Feb. 12 as ordered because he had been "nervous and sick on that date."

New U. S. Carrier Lexington Soon To Join Fleet

QUINCY, Mass—(INS)—The men who make America's aircraft carriers got their wish today—a new U. S S Lexington soon will sail the seven seas.

Hard at work on a new carrier — tentatively named the Cabot—the men yesterday suggested to Secretary of Navy Knox that she be renamed in honor of the carrier lost after the victorious Coral sea battle.

Today, an air of exultation swept through the Fore river shipyards where the new carrier will be launched sometime in August. The navy secretary had heeded their request, calling it "nothing less than an inspiration."

TWO TOWNS HAVE AIR RAID ALERT

Residents of Pennsylvania Cities Roused at Midnight by Alarm.

UNIONTOWN, Pa — (U.P.) — An unexplained air raid alert was sounded in the Uniontown and Connellsville areas last midnight, rousing residents from their beds and causing a rush blackout that police officials reported was far from 100 per cent effective.

The alert, of the "red" type which indicates trouble only five minutes away, was flashed exactly at midnight, and shrieking sirens carried the alarm throughout the Fayette county district. The all-clear was sounded at 12:15 a. m., before the blackout could reach any degree of effectiveness.

CITY TO BUY 3 NEW CRUISERS

Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals said that plans originally called for the purchase of new cruisers in 1943 but because of the wartime restrictions on automobile production it was feared that the city would not be able to purchase new cruisers next year so the purchase date was advanced.

Mayor W. J. Locke last night asked council to appropriate an additional $1,000 for the maintenance of police motor equipment this year. The mayor said $1,600 of the $2,000 appropriated for maintenance had been spent in the first five months of the year.

Council also approved the amendment of a former resolution giving the authority to purchase two new trucks for the waterworks department. The resolution was changed to allow the purchase of "new or used" trucks. Priority restrictions on the purchase of new trucks were given as the reason for the change.

MEETS TONIGHT

Election Board to Pass on Nominating Petitions.

Twenty candidates for Richland county and 17th congressional district offices who filed their petitions with the county election board before last Friday's deadline will know tonight whether they are qualified candidates for the Aug. 11 primary.

The county board of elections will meet late this afternoon to examine the petitions and determine if the candidates obtained sufficient valid signatures to qualify them.

Candidates must have the board's approval before their names are placed on the party ballots for the primary. Nine candidates filed for three county offices, nine for 17th district congressional and central committee posts, and two for state representative.
